U. S. PROTESTS BLACKLIST

TOLD GIRL TO AVOID 2 MEN

Conservator Paine on Stand in Case of Hyannis Heiress; Says He Will Not Resign Under Fire

Barnstable, July 27.—Charles C. Paine, whom Miss Marion Pomeroy Smith is seeking to have ousted as conservator of her estate, declared on the stand today that he would not resign.

"I will not resign under fire," declared Paine on the stand. "I don't want to be kicked out."

Mrs. Paine, wife of the conservator, testified today that she had advised Marion to have nothing to do with Maurice Phinney and "Jess the Portuguese" on account of the comment and criticism it had caused.

PHINNEY ON HAND.

Phinney was on hand today, as was Miss Smith, and it was expected both would testify before court closed today.

Paine in his testimony declared that he had a talk with Marion and advised her that because of scandal involving herself and Phinney and Jess, she ought to compel them to remain away.

Miss Smith's attorney, William A. Morse of Boston, and Attorney Bodfish, representing Ruanna Pomeroy, the girl's grandmother, held a conference this morning which delayed the opening of the court till 10:30. There was a crowd in the court room, most of them women.

Attorney Morse cross-examined Mr. Paine as to the date of an interview between Morse, Paine and Miss Smith in Morse's office.

Paine said that was on Tuesday, May 3.

Q.—These petitions were filed after that? A.—Yes.

Q.—It was after that you went to Hartford? A.—No, I consulted Judge Bill.

Q.—In that petition, you said she was unable to manage her own affairs? A.—Yes.

Q.—Do you speak to Marion? A.—No, not now.

NANTASKET BOAT HITS COAL BARGE

Passengers aboard the Nantasket steamer Old Colony were excited today when the steamer crashed, at half speed, into an empty coal barge, which loomed suddenly in the fog off Rowe's Wharf. There were about 250 passengers aboard.

The barge was unlinjured. The Old Colony's sheathing at the stem was dented, but so far above the waterline that it was not believed necessary to lay up for repairs.

GAS WELL BLOCKS SEARCH FOR BODIES

Cleveland, O., July 27.—The possibility of the city being forced to abandon search for the bodies of the men killed in the explosion in the water works tunnel Monday night and forego further work increased today when Chief Jones, federal mine expert, gave it as his opinion that the accident had uncovered a gas well of uncontrollable proportions. This may effectually prevent further operations. The death list was fixed at nineteen today.

Search Boston Harbor Waters for the Bremen

The waters outside Boston Harbor are being scoured by press boats and private craft watching for the first appearance of the Bremen, the undersea merchantman ordered to "his port when she sailed from Germany.

No sign of the big U-boat was manifest this morning, however, and port officials and light-keepers are still on the lookout.

German official and shipping circles in Boston are not a bit dismayed by the lack of news of the Bremen. Oscar Kuenardi, German consul, expressed confidence that the Bremen will arrive safely at some American port. So did Charles Keuhlwein, manager of the North German Lloyd Steamship line in this city, to which company the undersea liner is reported to be consigned. But neither had any news of her.

MERCURY IN HANDS OF POLICE

Brother of Dead Doctor Brings Bag Containing Vial to the District Attorney's Office

A bottle of mercury tablets from the office of Dr. Celia Paine Adams was brought to the office of District Attorney Pelletier today.

Medical Examiner Magrath said that mercury was the poison that killed the young Brookline osteopath. The source of the poison had remained a mystery, with endless speculation whether the girl's death was a case of accident, suicide or murder.

It is believed that one of these tablets caused Dr. Adams' death.

The bottle of tablets was brought to Assistant District Attorney Daniel V. Melnane by Winthrop Adams, brother of Dr. Adams. The bottle was one of a number of articles which Winthrop Adams had removed from his sister's office prior to the official search of the place by the police and medical examiner.

FIND VIAL IN BAG.

The brother had collected some things in a bag his sister owned and had taken them from the office.

He brought the bag and its contents to the district attorney's office today in response to a message from Mr. Melnane. The latter kept the bag and all its contents except a purse.

Speaking of the things brought by the brother, Mr. Melnane said later:

"In the bag was a vial with a number of mercury tablets."

Dr. Atwood's mother, who is ill at Vinal Haven, Me., now knows that her son shot Dr. Harris. She is heartbroken, but is bearing the news with what fortitude she can muster. It is not known, however, whether she has been told of Dr. Harris' death and the murder charge.

Miss Susie De Loriea of Woburn, the doctor's aunt, went to Vinal Haven last Sunday, so that Dr. Atwood's father could leave his wife and return here in his son's interest. Mr. Atwood did not tell his wife the real reason for his sudden return.

FRESH SHOCK AWAITS MOTHER.

Mr. Atwood received a postcard from Miss De Loriea today, saying:

Arrived safely. Lillie is taking the news calmly, but her heart is broken. Will write soon.

Steers Auto Into Woburn Mail Box to Avoid Crash

Report was made to the Woburn police today of an automobile accident on the steep grade of Sumner street, Woburn, in which Charles Stroutbers of No. 196 Northampton street, Boston, a colored chauffeur, turned an auto into a mail box post to avoid collision with a trolley car.

The car is owned by Mary M. Parrish of No. 95 Campbell street, Boston. Stroutbers was alone. As he was driving the car up the grade the engine stopped. The brakes refused to work. The car slid downhill with increasing speed. Stroutbers, glancing backward, was guiding the car as best he could when he saw a trolley car appear on the cross street at the foot of the hill.

Fearing a collision with injury to trolley passengers, Stroutbers swung the car into a mailbox post on the Summer street curb. The post and box were broken and the car was damaged, but was brought to a stop. Stroutbers was not hurt.

DENY WARSHIPS ENTERED WATERS

By International News Service.

Washington, July 27. — British Ambassador Sir Cecil Spring-Rice this afternoon denied to Acting Secretary of State Polk that a British naval vessel entered the American territorial waters near Norfolk Tuesday night as was officially reported to the Navy Department. He demanded that an investigation be made.

Ambassador Spring-Rice said all British naval vessels had been ordered not to enter American waters.

At the same time, Rear Admiral McLean, commandant of the Norfolk navy yard, this afternoon reported the vessel seen in Lynn Haven Bay actually was a British naval vessel.

The barge, Susquehanna was towing Barges 5, 15 and 20 up from Baltimore, all laden with coal. In the storm the string of barges strung away, and No. 8 went down with her tons of coal. The tug picked up the other barges and No. 8's crew.

FIND VERMONT MAN GUILTY OF MURDER

Chelsea, Vt., July 27.—A verdict of guilty of murder in the second degree was reported today by the jury in the case of Otis Williams of Wait River, who has been on trial here for killing his employer, Joseph Felch. The jury received the case at 6:30 last night and came in at 9:15 today.

The verdict carries a statute penalty of life imprisonment. Sentence will be imposed next week. The trial of Mrs. Felch, who was indicted jointly with Williams for the murder of Felch, will be put off until the September sitting, as she is in delicate health.

He said economic conditions were now better in San Luis Potosi, Tamaulipas and Nuevo Leon, and there is no lack of food there.

ACCUSES TRANSIT BOARD

Commission Holds Secret Session on Allegations That It Is Unlawfully Employing Aliens

The Boston Transit Commission today sat as judges upon its own actions at a secret hearing at which reporters were barred. At the hearing charges were made that the commission is employing alien labor and violating the civil service laws.

At the conclusion of the hearing, Max Ulin, who brought the charges, said:

"I wish to protest against the action of the transit commission members in sitting as judges and passing on their own acts.

"I charge the commission with hiring many laborers who are not citizens. When I first brought the matter to the attention of the commission, members of it said I could not produce any violations of the law.

"This morning I gave them fifteen names of employes, who, I claim I proved were not citizens. These men are employed at Canal street, South Boston and other yards of the commission.

"The commission probably does not want any publicity as to what I claim are its unlawful actions, and that is the reason why the public and newspaper men were kept from the hearing."

Those present included members of the commission, Secretary Beal and Commissioner of Labor Mulready, who came on from Washington especially to attend the hearing.

TURK VICTORY NEAR SUEZ CANAL DENIED

By International News Service.

London, July 27.—Claims of a Turkish victory east of the Suez canal over the British Egyptian forces were denied in the following official statement given out by the War Office today:

"It was stated in a German wireless message that our cavalry was driven back from Romani (El Rumani) and Katia (El Katie) on the Sinai peninsula. Our cavalry has completed the occupation of Katia and nowhere has been driven back. Complete superiority over the enemy has been established.

PROGRESS ON SOMME CLAIMED

Both British and French Report Further Successes — Terrific Bombardment by the Germans

By SYDNEY B. CAVE,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

London, July 27.—There was strong artillery activity last night between the Ancre and Somme rivers by both British and German guns.

The War Office in its official report issued early this afternoon stated that the British forces on the Somme front continue pressing back the Germans at various points.

The new British position at Pozieres has been strongly organized to resist German counter attacks, despite the rain of artillery fire which the German guns directed against it.

The loss of this village was one of the most serious blows struck the Germans by the British on the Somme battlefield, for it controls a ridge of ground 160 yards high and dominates the Bapaume road for considerable distance.

PRESS ENEMY BACK.

The War Office report follows:

"During the night our artillery was active. We continued to press the enemy back in hand-to-hand encounters at various points.

"The enemy is using large numbers of 'tear' shells. Elsewhere in front there have been no important developments in the past 48 hours."

Progress for the French on the Somme front and also in the sector of Verdun was reported by the Paris War Office today.

The Paris communique states that the Germans attacked north of Hill Alsace and also delivered a strong assault in Champagne, but were repulsed in both places.

In the Somme front the ground gained was south of the river.

At Verdun the French made an attack with infantry north west of Thiaumont, which enabled them to move their positions forward.

There was a violent artillery duel last night all along the Verdun front, on both sides of the Meuse.

GAIN SOUTH OF ESTREES.

The text of today's Paris communique follows:

"South of the Somme we made progress east of Estrees. There was a rather sharp rifle fire on the outskirts of Soyecourt.

"North of Aisne the enemy, after a violent bombardment, attacked yesterday evening in the region of Ville au Bois, the salient which forms our line northwest of Bois Hattes. The attack was checked by our machine gun fire.

"In Champagne a bombardment directed yesterday by the enemy against our positions west of Prosnes was followed at 10 p. m. by a violent attack on a front of 1,200 yards. It was stopped by our curtain of fire, which inflicted heavy losses upon the enemy. He was able to penetrate into some advanced trench elements of our line, whence our counter attack drove him out shortly afterward.

"At Verdun the artillery duel again took on a certain intensity during the night in the sector of Hill No. 304, in the region of Fleury and Laufee. We made some progress with grenades west of This ment work."

Shaw Backs Hearst Plea for Casement

By Geo. Bernard Shaw.
By International News Service.

London, July 27.

If the feeling expressed so warmly by Mr. William Randolph Hearst (in a recent letter) is at all general in America, it should be reduced to practice by claiming for Sir Roger Casement and all men in his position the status and treatment of prisoners of war.

A proposal to this effect was actually made at The Hague conference, but was not adopted.

The United States have the best right to revive it, as they acted on it in their Civil War fifty years ago. Political categories of traitor and treason and felony should be abolished. Casement's knighthood and pension should be restored to him, and he should be treated as a prisoner of war until the return of peace, when he should be released with all other prisoners.

I do not see that anything further can be logically or reasonably claimed, even on the assumption of a magnanimous attitude on part of the British Empire.

AIRSHIPS TO TRAIL THE DEUTSCHLAND

Baltimore, Md., July 27.—With every preparation made and every legal formality complied with, the German super-submarine Deutschland today still lay at her dock in Baltimore harbor, ready for her return dash across the Atlantic.

Every possible precaution had been taken to safeguard the under-sea boat on her perilous trip through the enemy-infested ocean, where warships of the allied powers wait to capture or destroy her.

But the final word that would send the Deutschland down Chesapeake Bay on the first leg of her long journey was withheld, and Captain Paul Koenig waited impatiently for some mysterious message, the lack of which has kept the Deutschland at her dock.

Commodore John Greville Haslam, formerly Captain Haslam of the Royal Yacht squadron of Halifax, who arrived at Baltimore from Nova Scotia and Boston, states that a great fleet of allied merchantmen and fast cruisers upon which armament has been mounted will form a patrol that will extend from America to the English and German coast.

Commodore Haslam indicated that with the five nationalities dying in sectors from the battleship stations, wide areas of the Atlantic will be patrolled. There will be little opportunity for the Deutschland to appear on or near the surface during the daytime.

BOYCOTT DECLARED UNFAIR

President's Protest, Denouncing Boycott as a Violation of Treaty Rights, Sent to London

By JOHN EDWIN NEVIN,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Washington, July 27. — The American protest against the British boycott now is in the hands of the British foreign office.

Acting Secretary of State Polk today let it be known that the protest was approved by President Wilson last night. It immediately was put into code and sent to Ambassador Page at London for presentation to the foreign office.

It is understood that the protest was compiled by President Wilson personally. It will be made public next Monday morning.

Officials at the White House and State Department expressed themselves as hopeful that the British government will modify considerably its position, in view of the emphatic opposition enunciated by the United States.

The protest, it is understood, insists that the boycott as announced by the British government is in direct opposition to the trade treaties between the two governments. The boycott is also characterized, officials say, as an unwarranted interference in the domestic affairs of the United States.

Interference with the business of American merchants, the protest says, especially when that business is almost exclusively confined to neutral territory, cannot be permitted by the United States. The general employment of the boycott by Great Britain is declared in effect to be an unfriendly act.

PETROGRAD REPORTS CAPTURE OF 6,378 TEUTON PRISONERS

By International News Service.

Petrograd, July 27.—Further advances for the Russians on the northwestern frontier of Galicia were reported by the Russian War Office today.

It is announced that in Tuesday's battle 128 Austro-German officers and 6,250 men were captured.

The official report follows:

"In the sector of Slonievka the fight for river crossings continues.

"In the region of Boldurovka we have advanced at some points.

"In Tuesday's battle we captured 128 officers, 6,250 men, five guns and twenty-two machine guns."

All of Turkish Armenia is now in possession of the Russians as a result of the capture of Erzingan by the army of the Grand Duke Nicholas.

Only feeble resistance is being offered to the victorious Russians as they continue their advance southward toward Bagdad railway, southwest toward the Mediterranean Sea, and northwestward toward Constantinople.

The Russians that captured Erzingan did not pause there, but are continuing their pursuit of the demoralized Turks. Russian forces are moving upon Kemakh and Karahisar, west and northwest of Erzingan.

The advance guard of the Russian army under General Udenitchen which is west of Erzingan, is about 100 miles from Constantinople, but is only 260 miles from the Mediterranean.

Dispatches from Tiflis say that the Turks set fire to Erzingan before evacuating the city, but considerable booty fell into the hands of the Russians.

WAR SUMMARY

Unofficial reports that the Germans were preparing a counter-offensive received some support today with the official announcement in Paris of German attacks on the Aisne front—where the Germans are nearest Paris—and in Champagne.

Both attacks were repulsed, Paris announced. If there is to be a German offensive, these attacks are doubtless of the nature of "feelers" to discover if the French have weakened their lines in any spot.

The French reported "progress" on the Somme front and at Verdun; but on the whole the western front was uneventful.

There were two important engagements on the Russian front. In one, near Riga, acording to Petrograd, the Germans attacked and were repulsed; while in the other, near Brody, the Russians claim progress and their usual interesting toll of prisoners. London quotes an Austro-Hungarian official report as saying that the Austro-Hungarian forces on the Russian front have not altogether been so numerous as the number of prisoners the Russians claim to have taken.

The Italian front was full of unimportant activity.

The Russian capture of Erzingan brings the Russians up to the real Turkish defences in that region—which are based on Sivas, still far ahead of the Russian advance.

Danish Indies Are Near Bankruptcy; Sale to Aid Them

St. Thomas, D. W. I., July 27.—Nothing is known here officially concerning the probable purchase of the Danish West Indies by the United States from Denmark, but the news that negotiations for the transfer of the islands have virtually been completed caused no surprise.

Probably due to the reluctance of Danish capitalists to invest more money for improving and maintaining the islands, conditions daily have been becoming more unsatisfactory. St. Thomas is threatened with bankruptcy, the harbor trade, its principal support, being almost dead. St. Croix is facing a social revolution, following agitation by laborers for higher wages and better living conditions.

Public sentiment in St. Thomas is divided over the question of the transfer of the islands. The lower classes of the people are the more desirous for a change. It is pointed out that St. Thomas would only be useful to the United States as a naval base, and that it is probable, should the sale be effected, that the harbor would be closed.

Asks England to Let Americans Land in Ireland

By International News Service.

Washington, July 27.—The State Department today cabled the British Foreign Office, through Ambassador Page at London, a request urging that it reconsider its decision barring from landing at Liverpool Thomas Hughes Kelly of New York, treasurer of the Irish relief fund; his wife and his secretary, Joseph Smith of Lowell, Mass.

At the same time the British ambassador, Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, cabled a recommendation that his government at least permit the trio to land in England even though it later should be found imprudent to permit them to proceed to Ireland to distribute the $50,000 that Kelly carried to be used in relieving the sufferers from the recent Irish rebellion.

Many protests demanding that the United States insist on Kelly being permitted to finish his relief work and protesting against the action of the British Foreign Office have reached both the State Department and the White House. These come from every section of the country and some of them are understood to be couched in most emphatic language.

Gen. Miles' Piping Stolen.

Pittsburg, July 27.—When boys stole twelve feet of lead piping containing the bone of General Nelson A. Miles with his private water supply, the water was shut off for several days.

AUSTRIA ADMITS ADVANCE OF RUSSIANS

By International News Service.

Vienna, via Berlin Wireless, July 7.—A retirement of the Austro-Hungarian forces behind the sector of Hodorica was admitted in the official War Office report issued today. The report follows:

"South of Lezajrow, our troops, being confronted by superior numbers of Russians, were taken back behind the Hodorica sector. Attacks in the vicinity of Radgivillov, which were prepared for by violent artillery fire, resulted in insignificant Russian advantages. The Russians suffered extraordinary losses.

"Italian theatre.—In the Val Zugana, the Italians have ceased their attacks. Artillery duels are still in progress. On July 24 the enemy's losses before a single section on this front were between 1,200 and 1,300 in killed and wounded. The enemy is now burying the dead and rescuing wounded.

"Balkan front.—Artillery duels have developed in Albania, east of Avalona."

Berlin Reports Attacks Repulsed

By International News Service.

Berlin, July 27.—The repulse of the British, French and Russian attacks was reported in the official statement of the German War Office today. On the Somme front British attacks made with hand grenades west of Pozieres failed to gain any ground.

South of the Somme the French attacked northeast of Barleux, but were repulsed.

On the eastern front Russian attacks on the Schitschara river south of Baranoviteh, and near Beresteczko on the Galician border, broke down. The official report follows:

"West front—Between the Ancre and the Somme there was intense artillery fire on both sides during the night. Enemy hand grenade attacks were repulsed west of Pozieres.

"South of the Somme a French attack northeast of Barleux failed.

"French attacks in the region of Proide de Terre ridge and Fleury (Verdun front) were repulsed. Fighting continues.

"Strong British reconnoitering detachments on the front southwest of Warneton approached our trenches. Near Richebourg patrols of the enemy were repulsed.

"A French coup de main north of Vienne le Chateau failed. Near Ville aux Bois, northwest of Prunay, we made about 50 prisoners.

"A French biplane was shot down near Reine, east of Rheims.

"East front—The Russians yesterday evening made a futile storming attack against our positions on the Schitschara, northwest of Lake Switsch. The Russians were also sanguinarily repulsed west of Beresteczko.

"Apart from an outpost fight on the Komaiks, south of Widsy, which was productive of severe losses to the enemy, there is nothing else to report."

NAVY BILL PASSAGE URGED BY WILSON

Washington, July 27.—President Wilson summoned to the White House today Representatives Padgett, Talbott and Estopinal, the ranking Democratic members of the House Naval Committee and told them he believed it vital that the House adopt the naval bill as it passed the Senate, with the construction program including four battle cruisers and four battleships to be built immediately, and an increase in the enlisted personnel of the navy.

Mr. Padgett, it is understood, told the President that there was certain to be determined opposition to the bill. The Representatives plan to have the committee report back to the House recommending disagreement with the Senate amendments and send the bill to conference.

By International News Service.

London, July 27.—Regarding England's treatment of Dutch fishing interests, the following was given out today by the Foreign Office:

"Statements are appearing in reference to the action of the British government toward Dutch fishing vessels. It is not suggested that the whole Dutch fishing fleet be laid up, nor is any restriction of the supply of fish for consumption in Holland contemplated. The matter is being discussed with representatives of the fishery department, and it is hoped that arrangements soon will be effected."

RUMANIA MAY DECLARE WAR ON KAISER

By LEONARD SPRAY.
Special Correspondent of International News Service and London Daily Telegraph.

Rotterdam, via London, July 27.—Both Berlin and Vienna seem to have made up their minds that a new enemy, Rumania, is about to enter the field.

According to information from Berlin, the deepest anxiety prevails there. While the Rumanian journals are speaking of Bulgaria and Austria as probable enemies, German newspapers threaten Rumania.

"Germany will support her allies by probable military measures against Rumania, which already are in hand.

The correspondent of the Berlin Tageblatt, writing from Bucharest, says: "You cannot trust the Rumanian policy. The only thing we can trust is our arms."

HUNT FOR TUMULTUOUS REFUSERS OF OATH

Many of the "six hundred" who returned from the first trip to Framingham unbound by one of the several Federal oaths are already on their way back to the camping ground for muster-in, to serve the balance of their term of enlistment, although the War Department order directing them to present themselves at Camp Whitney has not yet reached them except through the newspapers.

Clerks, civilian and military, are searching the many record books for the names and are having trouble galore. The records are about equally divided at present between the State officials in Boston and the Federal officers at El Paso, Columbus and other border towns.

As soon as the books have been found and examined the War Department order will be forwarded to all the men.

The recruiting campaign is well under way and very satisfactory results have been obtained. The adjutant-general said, however, that fifteen hundred more recruits are needed to bring the Massachusetts units to war strength.

When asked what would happen to a militiaman who did not obey the order to go to Framingham, Adjutant-General Cole said that such cases would be beyond State control.

The majority of the regimental bands who balked at six years of service have changed their tune and refused to serve out their term.

An officer from Framingham remarked today that out of the seventy-five thousand that marched in the preparedness parade, seventy-four thousand nine hundred and twenty-seven are as yet outside the military ranks. "We got three recruits from the paraders," he said.

Militiamen to Vote at Border

Governor McCall has appealed to Massachusetts Senators and Representatives in Washington to safeguard the right of the men sent to the border with the militia to vote for the national candidates at the Fall elections.

There is a bill before Congress designed to make provision for such voting. The text of that bill has not been received here, and there is some doubt as to how the voting will be managed, and as to how the ballots would be counted.

There are enough votes at the border to swing even a moderately close election to one side or the other.

It is possible that the necessity of counting those votes and adding them to the total cast in this State will delay the announcement of the result of the election.

Governor McCall said in discussing his appeal to the congressmen:

"The men are entitled to vote for the federal officials. There is no question of that.

"Massachusetts laws are so hedged about that two years' time would be required for a constitutional amendment to permit absentee voting.

"But to allow them to vote for federal officials is perfectly possible, and should be done."

BARONESS BETTINA VON HUTTEN, a former Philadelphia woman, who has been arrested as an enemy alien in England.

Arrest American Baroness as Alien Enemy in London

London, July 27.—Baroness Bettina von Hutten has been arrested as an enemy alien traveling more than five miles from her address without a permit. At the police court hearing the baroness protested that she was not a German but American-born.

She explained that she had been divorced from her German husband eight years ago, and had lived in England ever since and that she believed she would regain all her rights of American citizenship whenever she returned to America.

Scotland yard detectives said there had been previous complaints against the baroness traveling about the country.

The presiding Judge said it was doubtful whether the baroness could be considered an alien enemy. The case was adjourned in order to enable her to obtain counsel.

The Baroness von Hutten was formerly Miss Betsy Riddle of Pennsylvania. After her divorce from her husband she appeared on the stage in London.

Elbert Hubbard's Perfect Daughter Harvard Student

not for the young woman as it is for the young man, for life in itself is nothing if not vocational. Did that great university open its doors to the woman it would be to Cambridge that I would send my little Miriam."

The late Elbert Hubbard, the philosopher-master of Boyerdf, better known in the highways and byways of American literary life as "Fra Elbertus," often spoke in this strain. The University of Michigan offered the coeducation that Harvard failed to do, and it was there in 1912 that Miss Miriam Elberta Hubbard started her college career.

Miss Hubbard is now a member of the Harvard Summer School, living in Cambridge amid the same associations that her father did more than twenty years ago. It was as a Harvard Summer School in 1893 that Elbert Hubbard met Miss Alice Moore of Concord, who had just been awarded a degree from the Emerson College of Oratory. Several years later the couple were married, it being the second marriage for the sage of Eeycroft.

With the sinking of the Lusitania, Miss Hubbard was left penniless. She was studying in the University of Michigan at the time that word was received that her father and mother both had been drowned.

Each student entering Michigan has to undergo a physical examination, and thus it was in the Fall of 1912 that the physical directors in that institution declared that of the thousands and thousands of women that had been examined since Michigan adopted the plan, none approached Miss Hubbard in physical beauty. In her tests she showed a strength of 1519 pounds. Her heart and lungs are pronounced perfect. She was tall and slender at the time and without any very great curves.

Casement Execution In Pentonville Prison

By International News Service.

London, July 27.—It was stated in an official quarter today that a public execution for Sir Roger Casement was highly improbable. Unless there are special instructions from the government, arrangement will be made to hold the execution privately at Pentonville prison.

Justice Darling announced here today that the five Judges who heard the appeal on behalf of Casement will sit tomorrow morning to hear any further appeal that may be made on behalf of the condemned man.

Casement's friends are believed now to be pinning their hopes exclusively to the King's clemency—which will be granted, of course, only at the suggestion of the Premier and Cabinet.

But Casement's legal representatives have written Justice Darling asking a further hearing, and the hearing was granted on that ground.

Adverse Report On U. S. Plea for Casement

By International News Service.

Washington, July 27.—The Senate Foreign Relations Committee this afternoon voted to make an adverse report to the Senate on Senator Martine's resolution and all substitutes providing for the President to intercede in Sir Roger Casement's behalf.

As soon as the parliamentary situation in the Senate will allow, Senator Stone will make a report setting forth the committee's opinion that adoption of the resolution or substitutes would be resented by the British government and would injure, more than aid, Casement's chances for commution of sentence.

POISON IN DR. ADAMS' OFFICE

the sick and distracted mother had had they yet have a fresh shock to endure.

Dr. Atwood's brother, Joseph, who went to the scene of the naval militia, is expected back Saturday. Two letters have been mailed to him with the news of the shooting in the possibility that the letters might catch up with the family before it's report. So far no answer having been received, it is inferred that he is still in Connecticut with the family relatives.

SHARES OLMSTEAD'S CELL.

Zoeth W. Atwood, father of Dr. Stirling D. Atwood, secured a pass from Dr. Adams today to visit his son at Charles street jail.

Dr. Atwood now occupies a jail cell with Irving E. Olmstead of Newtonville, the wool salesman and family man, who is awaiting trial on the charge of shooting Mrs. Violet C. Moores in her manicure place on Winter street March 11.

Dr. Atwood was put in Olmstead's cell after the young dentist had been held in the city court for the August grand jury on a charge of murder in connection with Mrs. Wilfred E. Harris.

Sheriff Quinn had Dr. Atwood in a cell alone up to yesterday. The death of Dr. Harris Tuesday afternoon and tomatically placed the charge of assault with intent to kill to murder, the sheriff decided to hold for the Grand Jury without bail.

WATCH EACH OTHER.

Dr. Atwood was not taken back to the cell he had occupied since arrested a week before. He was put in Olmstead's cell, where the two men can keep each other company and incidentally serve as unofficial watchers, one over the other, in addition to the constant official guard stationed outside the cell.

The sheriff is necessarily obliged to extend limited privileges to men held on murder charges, and, where he can afford them mutual companionship, he is glad to do so.

This arrangement is done only where each man is willing. Men of similar walks in life is preferred and a business man in this case —are apt to make congenial cellmates.

Dr. Atwood is charged with killing Dr. Harris, a married man. The state say that Dr. Atwood told them that Dr. Celia Paine Adams, whom he loved, had confessed to Dr. Harris and Dr. Harris had betrayed her. The shooting took place soon after the mysterious death of Dr. Adams from mecurial poisoning.

FIRST DEGREE CHARGE.

Dr. Atwood has been bound over to await the Grand Jury action, is under a blanket murder charge, no degree having been specified in the lower court.

Olmstead is charged with first degree murder, that form of indictment having been returned by the April grand jury, which sat for more than two children. He shot Mrs. Moores, following a quarrel with her at the place of business. The police said that, when he was arrested, he told police officers Mrs. Moores had "double-crossed" him.

Mrs. Olmstead was quoted as saying that she thought her husband was of the opinion that he was goaded into shooting the manicure.

Dr. Atwood fired five times at Dr. Harris. Three bullets went home and Dr. Harris lived a week. Five shots were fired at Mrs. Moores, four of which took effect. The victim survived less than twenty-four hours.

Dr. Atwood's lawyers have already started a drive in their client's behalf.

William B. Watts, former head of the Boston Bureau of Criminal Investigation, has been employed to assist in preparing Atwood's defence.

WANTS SPECIAL INVESTIGATION.

It was stated today on good authority that Dr. Atwood has furnished the detective with information which may result in the most sensational kind of developments.

The detective will investigate the life history of Dr. Harris and will try and determine if the charges made by Dr. Atwood that Dr. Harris betrayed Miss Adams are true.

In the course of the probe, new facts are expected to be revealed relating to the death of Dr. Adams. The police claim that she was a suicide, but this statement is denied by her relatives.

Meanwhile Medical Examiner Leary reported to District-Attorney Pelletier that Dr. Harris' death was caused by septic poisoning which resulted from the three bullet wounds inflicted by Dr. Atwood.

The body of Dr. Harris arrived in Yarmouth, Nova Scotia, today, and will be shipped to Aylesford, Nova Scotia, where burial will take place. The body is accompanied by Mrs. Harris, Miss Catharine Claremont, Dr. Kenneth van Allen and Dr. Harry W. Conant.

Medical Examiner Magrath has not yet received a report from the chemist who has been analyzing the stomach of Dr. Adams. Meanwhile the police are trying to locate the place where the poison was purchased.

BELIEVES SISTER SLAIN

Miss Catherine Quinn, sister of Miss Rebecca McLeod of Mattapan, whose body was found at Oak Bluffs two days ago, today declared that after identifying the body yesterday she was convinced her sister was murdered.

Mrs. Quinn lives at No. 1 Churchill street, Mattapan.

State Police Inspector E. A. Dexter continued to the case, also believing the dead girl was a victim of foul play.

Mrs. Quinn said today:

"I was in Martha's Vineyard, and yesterday I identified my sister's body.

"I think she was murdered, although they did not let me look at the body on account of its condition.

"I made arrangements for burial in a cemetery at West Bedford.

HEARD FROM ON FIFTH.

"The investigation is all in the hands of the authorities. We can do nothing about it.

"I left the fifth of July when I last heard from my sister. I wrote to her after that, but the letters were returned to me with word that she had left there."

Under and more worrying with him in the police investigation at Oak Bluffs think the Mattapan authorities have a case of foul play. Some of the points made to bear out their theory are:

1—That her body was found in the water, and the first presumption was that she had died of drowning; there was practically no water in her lungs. This, it is said, may would indicate death before her body reached the water.

2—The fact that her gold ring and various articles of clothing are missing.

3—The fact that a wide search over quite a section of Martha's Vineyard has failed to reveal the two suitcases which the young woman carried when last seen.

4—The police statement that she had money when last seen, and that this money is unaccounted for.

5—The fact that the body was found in only two feet of water, which would hardly indicate suicide, the police say.

The theory is that she was lured to the vicinity of the bond wharf, where her body was found, and then robbed and killed and her body buried into the water.

Dexter makes the point that the young woman would not have selected the out-of-the-way pond had she planned suicide; but that she would have chosen some place nearer the town of Oak Bluffs.

The finding of the body where it was, following a quarrel with the girl's place of business. The police said that, when he was arrested, he told police officers Mrs. Moores had "double-crossed" him.

Mrs. Olmstead was quoted as saying that she thought her husband was of the opinion that he was goaded into shooting the manicure.

Dr. Atwood's lawyers have already started a drive in their client's behalf.

Birth Control Boast Is New Clew in Girl's Death by Air Bubbles

By International News Service.

Olney, Ill., July 27.—More mysterious than ever has become the strange death of seventeen-year-old Elizabeth Radcliffe. Her boy suitor, Roy Hinderleiter, held for her death, has begun his fight for freedom.

"I never wronged her," he said. "I don't know why or how she died I am innocent, and I am going to prove it."

Hinderleiter's arrest followed the death last Friday of the girl, following a crudely attempted operation, the prosecution will try to prove, by the farmer boy.

Physicians told the coroner's jury that an embolism in the arteries caused the death. Every organ appeared to be normal until air bubbles were discovered in the heart and brain.

SUICIDE IS HINT.

Suicide made its entrance in the case when Judge Whitcher, who will defend Hinderleiter, revealed he will try to prove that when Hinderleiter rode into Olney last Friday night, the youth carried in his arms the body of another's victim, that Elizabeth Radcliffe chose suicide as an alternative of disgrace or died from results of an operation which her sweetheart did not perform. Here is how he explains the innocence of Roy Hinderleiter:

Roy Hinderleiter has no medical knowledge.

When he met Elizabeth he was hypnotized by the girl's attractions. She was the belle of the town. A dozen Olney youths fought for her favor.

Hinderleiter finally she chose as her sweetheart. But she continued her appointments with the town boys.

With one of them she went out almost every night. Hinderleiter she saw about once a week. When her indiscretions resulted in what seemd inevitable disgrace it was Hinderleiter to whom she appealed.

He came to her. She died in his arms.

He whipped his team to a breakneck speed to the Olney sanatorium and it was doing disproved any guilty knowledge of the nature of her death.

On the other side, the prosecution alleges Hinderleiter boasted of his knowledge of birth control, and brought into the case the name of Dr. George Weber of West Salem.

SOLD INSTRUMENT.

Dr. Weber, according to State Attorney Morris, had sold Hinderleiter an instrument which the boy used several times.

The names of the youths whose depositions resulted in Hinderleiter's arrest were discovered today. They are Earl Berry, Glen Jones and C. R. Hall.

It was Hall who described the parcel which Hinderleiter is supposed to have left under the Big Creek bridge after his visit there with Elizabeth. It was Jones whom Hinderleiter is supposed to have asked to recover the instruments because he feared it would be found there.

Berry, the prosecution says, was with Hinderleiter when he purchased the instrument.

MYSTERY IN LETTER.

Besides all the characters which are entering the strange case is a decoy letter, more mysterious than the death itself. Upon its contents and upon the scrawled signature of the dead girl will be built the defence.

Elizabeth wrote the letter to Hinderleiter the day before she went on the fatal ride. Although it has been seen by the youth Hinderleiter and Judge Whitcher it is known to betray the girl's mental agitation. The letter was written, the defence is preparing to prove to lure Hinderleiter to the girl's side. It was dictated, his attorney believes, by another Olney youth.

Youth Pawned His Mother's Furs so He Could Marry

Eva Wells of Lynn and A. Frank Higgins of Swampscott, each twenty, were arraigned in the Lynn court today, charged with stealing a sealskin coat and muff, the property of Mrs. Mary Higgins of Swampscott, the boy's mother.

"I took this coat and muff to Boston and pawned them, and Eva and I were going to get married with the money," the youth told Judge Dunn.

"We went to Old Orchard, but we could not get a license there, so we came back to Boston. Eva didn't have anything to do with taking these things."

The garments had been recovered, so Judge Lummus dismissed the case against the girl and filed that against the boy. Mrs. Higgins was in court and under her indignant eye her, her son and Miss Wells left the court together.

Milwaukee, Wis., July 27.—The Milwaukee Leader announced an advance in price from one to two cents. onel Logan's action.

Curley Holds Up Salary Increase Voted for Logan

It is possible that Judge Logan, now at the border as colonel of the Ninth, may not get the raise in salary from $2,750 to $3,200, granted yesterday by the City Council, as the Mayor said today that he is withholding his approval until he thinks it over. He said:

"Here are some pretty substantial raises, and the City Council has been generous with them. The $450 increase in salary. It is not fair to make flesh of one and fish of the other."

The withholding by the Mayor of his approval to Judge Logan's salary increase recalls the recent episode between the Mayor and the Judge when the Ninth marched through Boston on its way to Framingham.

The Mayor had provided slips of green for members of the Ninth to wear, but Colonel Logan refused to allow his men to wear them. The Mayor issued a lengthy explanation of his act, and it was said at City Hall he was much displeased at Colonel Logan's action.

PROVIDENCE TO N. Y. SEA LINE ALLOWED

Washington, July 27.—The Interstate Commerce Commission today granted the Central Vermont Railroad permission to continue operation of boat lines between New York city and New London, Ct., and to establish a similar service between New York and Providence, under the Panama Canal act, which prohibits railroad ownership of boat lines where such ownership is likely to stifle competitive rates.

AUTO DRIVER IS HELD FOR DEATH

Martin L. Martin of West Fifth street, South Boston, was arraigned on the charge of manslaughter in the Roxbury court today in connection with the death of John J. Martin pleaded not guilty and was held for continued hearing August 11. He is employed as a letter carrier and collecting mail at the time of the accident.

GREAT R. R. WALKOUT FAVORED

By International News Service.

St. Louis, July 27.—The strike vote of the four train service brotherhoods, completed this morning, resulted overwhelmingly in favor of a strike.

Reports from all sections of the country justify the conclusion that between 94 and 98 per cent. of the brotherhood membership have voted in favor of a nation-wide strike affecting practically every railroad in the United States and approximately 450,000 employes.

In the St. Louis district the percentage will probably exceed this estimate. On reliable authority it is estimated that Frisco employes have been practically unanimous in the casting of the strike ballot. Ninety-nine per cent. of the men are said to have voted for the walkout.

ON OTHER ROADS.

The vote on the Missouri, Kansas & Texas is said to have fallen a little short of that on the Frisco, the percentage in favor of a strike being estimated at 98.

The strike percentage on the Missouri Pacific was estimated at approximately 90 per cent.

Neither railway nor brotherhood officials would discuss the matter for publication. Railway officials admitted that their best information indicated that the percentage would be "somewhere in the nineties."

BIG MEETING PLANNED.

The ballots cast in the St. Louis district will be taken to New York unopened. They will be delivered to the Brotherhood headquarters. It is expected that tabulation will begin within the next few days.

It is planned to have the counting finished August 8, and a monster mass meeting of the four brotherhoods has been called for the Amsterdam Opera House in New York that night. The result of the vote will then be announced.

PICKLE HOUSE ON T WHARF BURNS

Atlantic avenue traffic, at the foot of State st., was blocked in the rush hour today by hose lines laid for a fire in G. M. Armstrong Company's wholesale pickle, mustard and relish plant at No. 13A T wharf. Trolley cars, the heavy teaming and the carshifting of the Union Freight Railway Company were held up.

The fire was kept in the Armstrong place. Firehoat 47 came up on the south side of the wharf with the land force. Fire damage, according to Chief J. McDonough, was held down to $700.

Newburyport, July 27.—Captain Frank E. Steeves, for twenty-five years keeper of the Plum Island Coast Guard Station, is to retire on a pension at the end of this month.

LOSS OF POSITION DRIVES BAY STATE SOLDIER INSANE

By BERT FORD.

El Paso, Tex., July 27.—Private Timothy Finn of Lynn, member of D Company of the First Massachusetts Infantry, who had been under observation for mental trouble at the Fort Bliss hospital two weeks, escaped from a Pullman yesterday while being transferred to an asylum for further mental observation.

He jumped from the train and is still at large. He fooled his guard. He displayed symptoms of insanity at Camp Cotton and was overpowered when attempting to cross into Mexico clad only in a shirt.

Chaplain Edwards of the Fifth Regiment said today that a private was so worried upon hearing that he had lost his position since coming here that he became hysterical and had to be held by several comrades. One of the man's children has been sent to a home.

PATHETIC CASES.

Other married men have heard that their homes have been closed and furniture seized because of non-payment of installments. Names are withheld, but there are specific cases and pathetic cases galore.

Conditions at home are becoming so deplorable that there has been a deluge of applications for discharges under the dependents' clause. Sixty have been made in one unit of 120 men.

Many married men are eager to resign, forgo their oath, but wish to go home and help destitute wives and children, but if they obtain discharges they will be stranded here as the War Department will not pay return transportation of National Guardsmen who seek release.

Feeling is growing because of the unpatriotic action of employers.

Three companies held elections in the Ninth yesterday and Colonel Edward L. Logan presided over each. The hottest fight was for the second lieutenancy in A Company. Sergeant Michael J. Lannon of Roxbury won with sixty-one votes out of a total of 116; Sergeant Mark A. King received forty votes; Sergeant William J. H. Ryan two, and there were two blanks.

On the first ballot Lannon received fifty against forty-six for King, and Ryan received one, but fifty was not enough for a choice, so the election was repeated. Joseph V. McConnell, a well-known young attorney of Boston, was unanimously elected First Lieutenant. As Second Lieutenant McConnell has been acting captain of A Company since Framingham was left. Captain Thomas F. Murphy having been made adjutant.

LOGAN'S OLD COMPANY.

Colonel Logan addressed A Company after the election. He said it was his company before he became Colonel, that he had served as private in it and that he wanted it to be not only the best company in the Ninth, but the best in the State, and to help make the "Fighting Ninth" the best regiment. He said the border tour would greatly benefit men and "cleaning" and he felt that one of the greatest lessons taught here would be the necessity for the men to give proper respect to non-commissioned officers and to lift the standard of the non-coms.

Second Lieutenant George J. Cronin was elected captain of D Company, succeeding Captain Herbert S. M. Layden. First Lieutenant Nicholas J. Fleming declined to run. Sergeant Francis McNulty of Andover was elected second lieutenant of F Company of Lawrence. He received seventy-two votes, Sergeant W. A. Kenney twenty-six, and Sergeant William Landers one vote.

AT NEW STATIONS.

After having spent fifteen days guarding border stations along the front of ninety-five miles from Fort Hancock to Las Cruces, the Fifth Regiment returned to Camp Cotton yesterday and all but two companies of the Eighth Regiment went out to replace them.

The boys of the Fifth were so royally entertained at the border stations that they hated to leave. Residents got up a petition asking that they be kept permanently, but that did not suit the military program so Colonel Graves' men went out. They will be in line for banquets and dances and church suppers, too.

Illness Causes Ban Against Cold Drinks

By WILLARD H. DAVIS.

Columbus, N. M., July 27.—Too many exhaustions in the camp of the Second Regiment on the Mexican frontier has caused a "no drink until 4 o'clock" order to be issued by Colonel William C. Hayes.

This order resulted after six men dropped in their tracks during a long hike. Each man complained of cramps in the stomach. Army doctors looked them over and pronounced the ailment "just plain B-ache," as they call it in the army.

The colonel now forbids any iced drinks to be taken until 4 o'clock in the afternoon. The men have been in the habit of spending a good part of their time at the post exchange, sipping "long cool ones" only to be found later doubled up on their cots.

Company H of Worcester seems to be as hard hit as anyone. Tonight a good part of the men in this company are suffering from a combination of sore feet and "B-aches."

Some of the cases warranted sending the men to the hospital where they were given generous doses of Jamaica ginger and castor oil. One private in H Company, it is said, partook of eighteen bottles of "pop" and wondered why he had cramps.

Congressman Allen T. Treadwell, of the First Congressional District, whose home is in the Berkshires, arrived at the camp looking like Santa Claus. He was loaded down with all sorts of gifts for the boys in camp and his welcome by express. He will stay until Friday. He was entertained by Colonel Hayes and his staff at mess in the officers' quarters. He later inspected the camp.

William Blanchette of C Company won new laurels today when he shot and killed a six-foot rattler on the rifle range. He was not allowed to bring his prize home so took the rattles and planted the reptile in five minutes.

FEAR NEW RAID ON THE BORDER

El Paso, July 27.—Two hundred Mexican bandits are at San Carlos, thirty miles south of Ojinaga on the Mexican border, according to an official report sent to Major-General Frederick Funston at San Antonio headquarters.

The leaders of this Mexican band are threatening to cross the line into the American soil. Although it is certain that Villa has not with him the band, the new followers of the bandit chieftain.

Militiamen and regular cavalry have been posted at Terlingua, the nearest U. S. settlement, and other outposts are in touch with the district about Ojinaga.

Other troops are being held in readiness and will be rushed to any spot that is threatened.

The presence of Mexican guerillas so close to the border was reported at once to the military authorities in Chihuahua city were sending out the most optimistic reports.

General Matias Ramos, who is stationed at Escalon, 100 miles north of Torreon, has sent word to Juarez that Villa's band has been scattered and that the outlaw chief is hiding in Canon De Las Huertas with a handful of men. However, this news is received with a great deal of skepticism among army men here.

General Jacinto Trevino, who was reported to have mutinied along with his men, is at Chihuahua City, and some of the reports coming through from that city bear his signature.

GLUED TO CHAIR BY RHEUMATISM

Edward T. O'Neil, a Prominent Bostonian, Relates His Experience.

Plant Juice has been introduced into a number of great American cities and everywhere it has met with tremendous success. Plant Juice is purely an herbal remedy, and is proving the greatest ever produced. Once the public of a city tests it they know its merit and a great demand for it follows. It is particularly a tonic for city people where modern modes and customs of life lead to various forms of debility—to nervous, stomach, blood and kidney troubles. In fact, in a general run-down condition, Plant Juice tones up as does no other tonic. It gives immediate relief and lasting results. All forms of stomach, liver and kidney troubles and blood disorders are relieved by Plant Juice. It is a true specific for debility and nervous weakness in men and women. It seems to bring a return of buoyancy and spirits, of cheerfulness, and of good health.

Selected at random from a mass of written testimonials, is that of Mr. Edward T. O'Neil, a well-known resident of Greater Boston, having lived in this city all his life, at No. 21 Bow Court, Somerville, who says:

"I have suffered from rheumatism and catarrh in the head for years, also stomach trouble, indigestion and dyspepsia. I could not eat potatoes, vegetables or meat of any kind. My food fermented in my stomach, causing gas and a bloated condition. I was so lame from rheumatism that when I would sit down I could scarcely get up again. In fact, I thought I had cancer, my blood was in such bad shape. Now I have taken Plant Juice for a few weeks and can truthfully say I am cured man. I can eat any kind of food, have no more rheumatism or catarrh and am feeling like a new man. I can recommend Plant Juice to any one."

The Plant Juice man is at the drug department of the Houghton & Dutton store, where he is daily meeting the local public and interesting and explaining the merits of this remedy.—Advertisement.

To Make Hairs Vanish From Face, Neck or Arms

Keep a little powdered delatone handy, and when hairy growths appear make a paste with some of the powder and a little water, then spread over hairy surface. After 2 or 3 minutes rub off, wash the skin and it will be entirely free from hair or blemish. This simple treatment is unfailing, but care should be exercised to be sure and get genuine delatone, otherwise you may be disappointed.—Advertisement.

STATE COFFERDAM A FAILURE, CONRY WRITES TO GOVERNOR

Port Director Joseph A. Conry today addressed a second letter to Governor McCall on the drydock situation as follows:

What was forecasted in connection with building the drydock has occurred. The cofferdam is a failure of construction, one hundred feet of the structure having totally collapsed during the night of Tuesday, July 23. Fortunately no lives were lost.

This catastrophe will no doubt recall to your mind the protest last Spring of the Central Labor Union regarding the character of the cofferdam construction. The contractor ignoring the advice of Admiral Harris, naval expert, elected to build the cofferdam of wooden sheeting and by the terms of the contract, the contractor's design required the approval of the engineer of the port directors. This approval was obtained by the contractor and work was begun.

By the failure of the cofferdam as designed by the contractor and approved by the engineer of the port directors, a fair interpretation of the contract warrants the opinion that this cofferdam design is fatally defective, and therefore must be rejected.

Any new form of cofferdam construction undertaken by the contractor must first be approved by the port directors, and how can the port directors approve any design offered now, without waiving rights of the State, the time stipulated in the contract for the completion of the contract having expired?

The wisest course to follow at this time is to void the contract. The contractor, having given notice of his claims, is prepared for litigation. The State is not. The State should now have a stock-taking.

The Port Directors having been abolished, their duties having been doubled by consolidation with another department and their salaries reduced accordingly as a result of a spirit of legislative economy, the new commission, endeavoring to carry out this spirit of economy, will reorganize the engineering staff, and of necessity several high-salaried men will be dropped.

Twenty-five months hence (the time when the entire drydock is to be finished) these witnesses for the State will be scattered, the State will have waived its rights and be an easy defendant victim.

The naval appropriation bill is now in conference in Congress, and this affair is to be discussed for some weeks. If you should address yourself to this problem I believe you will again have the assistance of which the nation owes and should pay to Massachusetts, namely, a substantial share of the financial burden assumed by the State in building a drydock for use of the federal government.

Crews of Vessels Report Seeing Sharks in Bay

Incoming steamships report that the waters of Massachusetts Bay are filled with sharks, scores of monsters having been seen by officers and crews of the various steamers.

The men on the Christian Boss say they sighted a dozen large sharks off Cape Cod and the officers of the Saxon Monarch report having seen at least twenty-five in the neighborhood of Cape Ann.

Other crews bring the same tale. All reports agree that the sharks are heading in toward shore.

APPEAL IS ASKED IN TICKER CASE

The Western Union Telegraph Company has applied to Chief Justice Rugg of the Massachusetts Supreme Court for a writ of error permitting them to appeal to the United States Supreme Court against the decision of the local court that they must furnish ticker service to Calvin Foster, a Boston broker. They said they could not furnish him service, because they were under contract with the New York Stock Exchange to furnish service only to approved customers and they say Foster was not approved. They seek an appeal on the ground that the case is interstate commerce.

Allen Proves a Wizard Tyler or Nehf Today

By JOHN W. MORAN, JR.

Not so many seasons back Frank Allen, a dependable left-hander, worked for the Squire of Flatbush, and while in the latter's service he was especially successful against the Cubs. After the Federal League blowup, George Stallings acquired Allen along with Ed Konetchy and Elmer Knetzer. In the South Allen looked like a million dollars.

Since becoming a Brave he has managed to stand the Cubs, referred to above, on their proverbial domes. The last three times he has met those Cubs they have managed to wiggle one run off him and about ten safe blows. Thus his pitching average against Joe Tinker's bunch is especially good. Yesterday he twirled a mighty classy contest.

In fact, Allen looked so good that today Stallings thinks a left-hander has the Cubs' number most any time he starts. And as a result it's dollars to post holes that either George Tyler or Arthur Nehf draws the assignment today. J. J. Pfeffer and all other elements will permit it, the Braves and Cubs hook up again today in a single bill.

As yet J. Kinley Tener hasn't rendered a decision on the play in Tuesday's game, which created such a furore. Hope is entertained that a decision will come shortly. Today Stallings feels the same as he did yesterday and the night before regarding the matter. He feels that the Braves were entitled to something better, and intends fighting to see that they get it.

EVERS STILL IN GAME.

Boston fans and the club management are jubilant over the fact that Johnny Evers didn't draw a layoff as a result of the incident in which he and Zeider figured on Tuesday. That the fans, who support the game, are with Evers was evident yesterday when he came to bat. Almost every individual present applauded him. Thus they showed the umpires and all that the Trojan, while possibly wrong at times, is not continually wrong.

Joe Tinker hadn't made up his mind today just who would work for his club. He informed the writer that Packard, McConnell and Prendergast were all in condition to work. Prendergast worked less than an inning yesterday and appeared to have some stuff with him. Consequently, he is favored for the try today.

MOLLWITZ MAY PLAY.

Tinker expects that Mollwitz will be with him today, and if Stallings makes use of another left-handed pitcher Mollwitz will be at first base for the Cubs. Tinker induced Weegham to spend close to $15,000 for Mollwitz' services and thinks that the tall first sacker will help.

While of course one can hardly see the Cubs landing the flag this season, there is nevertheless the possibility of such a happening. Tinker's men are not so far back but what they can come up and win. However, Joe and his bosses will be satisfied if the club makes a good showing and finishes in the first division this year.

TINKER LIKES PHILLIES.

They are looking into the future, and a win next year will be equally as good to them as one this year. Of course a little added money this season would help. Though Tinker has not publicly expressed himself, it is known that inwardly he favors Philadelphia for the flag. Joe admits that the Braves have a fine team and thinks it possible for them to get up there.

However, he, like everybody else, thinks the club must go along a trifle differently in order to land. Tinker is of the opinion that in Alexander Pat Moran has an ace in the hole, one that will stand him in good stead and one that will do much to bring Philadelphia its second National League pennant.

NOTES OF THE GAME.

OTTO KNABE coached at third and had lots to say to those on the Braves' bench. The chatter was interesting if not instructive.

* * *

* * *

HERE and there in spots the field was a trifle wet. There were little puddles in different spots. The ball couldn't run very far.

* * *

IN the fifth the Braves had a fine chance to count a run or two. With second and third taken and two gone "Hippo" Jim elected to pass Hennery Gowdy. It was good judgment for Frank Allen fanned nifty.

* * *

Sox After First Place Joe Wood Back in Fold

Cleveland, July 27.—Carl Mays, Bill Carrigan's justly renowned little ironman, had a wee bit something on ol' Fred Beebe in their duel yesterday, and, as a result, the Red Sox made connections, 3-2. It was another well played game, and, as the crippled Yankees took another header in Chicago, the World's Champions will be in first place by dusk if yesterday's results are repeated today.

Speaker failed to duplicate his wonderful all-round performance of the opening day. Tris only connected safely once and the blow helped the Indians to one of their runs. Otherwise, the Texan was on Mays' staff all afternoon.

Hoblitzell's single, Walker's force and Scott's timely safety gave the Red Sox a run in the second. 'Twas in the fifth when the visitors won the battle. Walker, first up, singled and came in on Gardner's sharp double. Scott sacrificed his infield associate along to third and Larry walked home when Beebe uncorked a wild pitch.

Despite the fact that they are within one-half a game of first place the Red Sox players are bemoaning the fact that Tris Speaker is not enrolled as a member of Joe Lannin's baseball family.

THIS WOULD CINCH FLAG.

With Tris in the line-up the Red Sox, almost to a man, figure they would be anywhere from eight to a dozen games out in front of the procession and taking things comparatively easy, instead of travelling under such high tension day after day.

To date the Indians and Red Sox have played an even dozen games and strange to say each team has been returned the victor six times. Bill Carrigan's boys will point to four of the games that the Indians chalked on the right side of the ledger and show you where their former teammate produced the necessary punch to put over the win.

JOE WOOD IN FOLD.

"Smoky" Joe Wood reported to Manager Carrigan yesterday and announced that his right arm is as good as in the rare old, fair old days and added he was anxious to put it to the acid test under real fire. That announcement brought a smile of satisfaction from Owner Lannin and Manager Carrigan and a regular three cheers and a tiger, so to speak, from Joe's teammates.

Wood will work out here today and tomorrow and will probably be asked to pitch one of the six games at Detroit.

Stanley Coveleskie is slated to work for the Indians today, it being Coveleskie Day. The Polish Political League of Ohio will turn out en masse to pay tribute to their countryman-pitcher. Either Ernie Shore or "Dutch" Leonard will work for the Sox.

Stecher Lost Chance Gotch Is Now Out of It

By ED. W. SMITH.

If the injury to Frank Gotch is permanent—and a broken bone at the age of thirty-eight for an athlete is usually fatal to any future work in competition—Joe Stecher should kick himself from one end of the State of Nebraska and back again.

Stecher had a chance to wrestle Gotch once or twice—that is, the match was possible a couple of times. But Stecher didn't see fit to make it the first time, pleading that he was a bit too green for that sort of company, and later, when the second opportunity came, they quibbled over the terms so long that all hope of a match went glimmering quickly.

BLOW HARDEST TO JOE.

Of course it was an unfortunate thing for Gotch at this time, but when you come to consider it carefully it is more unfortunate for Stecher.

It doesn't look possible for Gotch ever to wrestle again after this injury, and Stecher's chance to prove himself a real world's champion by downing the famous Iowa man appears to have gone.

Lots and lots of people firmly believe that Stecher today is the real champion. But, on the other hand, lots and lots of people never will get the idea out of their heads that Gotch isn't—or wasn't—the greatest of them all. Hence there will be endless arguments when Stecher lays claim to the title.

It will be something of a blot on his aspirations, this failure to meet and beat Gotch, and in years to come, when Stecher is on top and generally acclaimed the greatest of them all, there will be the usual crooker who will come out and say: "Well, I don't see how you can call him a real champion, he never beat Gotch."

Frank Gotch was thirty-eight years old last April. The early reports of his accident say it may be many, many weeks before he will be able even to stand on his left foot. Further they say it will be a year before he will be able to stand the strain of training for a match. Frank then will be almost forty years old—an impossibility as an athlete.

So it looks as if the big fellow definitely passed at Kenosha the other night when he snapped his leg just above the ankle.

NO DEFEAT SINCE 1905.

You may not realize it, but this famous athlete has not met defeat since May 19, 1905, when Tom Jenkins, one of the greatest wrestlers the world ever knew, dumped him in a New York match.

Since then it has been nothing but peaches and cream for Gotch. He threw everybody that came along, his career reaching its apex when he downed George Hackenschmidt in their first match on April 3, 1908.

He was a wonderful man.

Motor Stars to Hit It Up Over Derby Route

TONIGHT'S REVERE CARD.

Fifty-Mile Motor-Paced Race—Starters: Georges Seres, France; Robbie Waltheur, Atlanta, Ga.; Fred Herbert, Fall River; Leon Didier, France.

Amateur and Professional Events.

The bicycle races slated for last evening at the Revere Cycle Track were put over until tonight, owing to the rain, and the postponement really means a far better race for the fans.

Seres, who won a great race over Didier last Saturday night, has been substituted for Georges Colombatto, the Italian champion, and his one aim is to make it two straight over his countryman.

Waithour has also been put on the card, and the "Dixie flyer" declares he will show up both French pace-followers, while Herbert, the baby member of the quartet, is hopeful of pulling a surprise.

The regular card of amateurs and professional events will be run off. Starting time is 8:15 p. m.

MABEL TRASK WINS RICH M. & M. STAKE

Detroit, July 27.—Mabel Trask, a heavy favorite, won the $10,000 M. & M. stake for 2:05 trotters. The Eastern mare outclassed her field, and only in the first heat was she brought to a mild drive to stall off the challenge of St. Frisco.

The winner is owned by Barton Pardee of Atlantic City, N. J.

RACES AT NORTHAMPTON.

Northampton, July 27.—Yesterday's Short Ship circuit card, postponed on account of rain, will be run off today. The feature events are the Connecticut River Stock Farm race for 2:12 trotters, the Hotel Men's stake for 2:15 pacers and the E. and J. stake for 2:20 trotters. Each stake has a value of $500.

Morning Tennis Matches Are Called Off

All matches scheduled for this morning in the annual tennis tourney of the Longwood Cricket Club were postponed because of conditions. This afternoon they will be played, that is, of course, providing the showers pass over and make playing a possibility. The committee planned on an early start and hoped to rush through all the scheduled contests.

The chances of a surprise resulting from the play are so great that at signs point toward a record crowd for the afternoon should the clouds finally pass by and make playing a possibility.

Ike Chambers has had his big tarpaulins over the championship courts since yesterday forenoon and as a result they are ready for play.

Wards Sued for Two Unsettled Fed Stipends

New York, July 27.—The Ward family, which formerly owned the Brooklyn Federals, have been made defendants in suits, one of them filed by Outfielder Claude Cooper and another by "Bill" Bradley, who managed the team in 1914.

Cooper claims he had an "iron-clad" contract for three years, calling for $7,000 per season, while Bradley says his pay was to have been $7,500 for three years.

Ward admits that the 1915 salary was paid, but asserts that nothing has been done so far toward paying the 1916 salary.

Cooper is playing with the Phillies and getting $4,000 a year. He is willing that the $4,000 should apply against the $7,000, but he yearns to get the other $3,000 from the Wards.

National Polo Play Comes Friday

Narragansett Pier, R. I., July 27.—There is a big "if" in every announcement from the Polo Association committee regarding resumption of play in the Point Judith Club tournament. As a result the committee announced that today's play for the national open championship will be postponed.

Manager Hopping will devote all his time to getting the fields into condition for fast galloping. There will be no play Friday unless they are in the pink of condition. In this event the semi-finals for the Randolph cups will be run off, otherwise the re opening will be 2:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon with the senior championship between Great Neck and Meadow Brook.

Overton to Enter if Not Sent to Front

John W. Overton, captain of the Yale track team, who is with the Tenth Infantry Artillery of Connecticut, in training camp at Tobhanny, Pa., has written to Fred Rublen, treasurer of the A. A. U., that he will compete in the national championships if his regiment is not sent to the border.

Yachting Notes

Although the Gadfy and the Stuart are scheduled to race for the Commodore's Cup of the South Boston Yacht Club, because of the tie in the run to Marblehead and return two weeks ago, there is very little chance of these boats competing in this match race. They are both fighting for Y. R. U. championship in Class B. The Gadfy is leading the class, but the Lethe is so close that a failure to start and a win for the Lethe would reverse the order.

* * *

The Arexyo, which is at present on top in Class A of the Y. R. U., will have to go at top speed during the entire midsummer series in order to keep from being displaced by the Vim, the 1915 champion. Walter Keyes did not get all that was possible out of the Tyro during the first part of the season, being unfamiliar with the craft, but he now has the boat under complete control and expects to be out in front of all "X" boats before the middle of the first week of the midsummer series.

* * *

There should be one of the largest gatherings of Y. R. U. boats of the season at the Winthrop Yacht Club open regatta next Saturday. The Winthrop Yacht Club races will be the last chance that the yachtsmen have to warm up before the midsummer series.

* * *

The Eastern Yacht Club will give an open regatta for the North Shore yachtsmen Saturday afternoon off Marblehead. As the contenders for the Sir Thomas Lipton Cup and the North Shore championship have not been in action for two weeks, they will all be out for blood.

* * *

The Quincy Challenge Cup series, which will start on Monday off Marblehead, promises to create even more interest than was manifested when the sonder boats were racing for this trophy. The "P" boats, which will battle for the famous Quincy Cup, are becoming more and more popular every day and if they continue to develop interest at the same rate that they have this season, it will be a comparatively short period of time before sonder boats will be entirely forgotten.

A Girl and a Man

Agnes Sizes Up the Junior Partner of Hale and Bainbridge

By Verginia Terhune Van de Water

CHAPTER XI.

Copyright, 1916, Star Company

At half-past 8 on the second morning of her occupancy of her new position, Agnes Morley was elbowing her way out of the packed subway train at Fulton street.

She had awakened early and had lain wide-eyed for a time thinking of Phil, then, finding that sleep had deserted her permanently, she had arisen and helped her protesting aunt in the preparation of breakfast.

"But, dear child," Miss Lucy Morley had objected, "there was no need of your getting up so early. You told me that you do not have to be down town until 9 o'clock."

"I know," Agnes admitted, meanwhile beating energetically the eggs for an omelet, "but I am going to try and get down early for the first few weeks at least. I am only a beginner, and I am sure it will make a good impression if I am always on time."

As she joined the throng climbing the subway stairs to the street the girl thrilled a little, thinking for the hundredth time that she was at last self-supporting.

All about her were workers—gray-haired men, slim, hurrying youths, women of almost every type and age—a detachment of the workera of a great city, all a part of the vast army of fighters for a decent living.

"And I am one of the huge hash," Agnes reflected exultantly, as, reaching the street, she turned toward the tall building where Hale and Bainbridge had their offices.

The elevator which bore her aloft also carried the red-haired lad who acted as guardian of the outer gate in the firm's offices. He grinned and nodded as he met her eyes.

"You're kinder early, ain't you?"

"Not so very early," the girl told him. "It is twenty minutes of 9 now."

"Huh!" he snorted. "You'll get over that early habit quick enough. The crew in this place never shows up till just five minutes before 9. We all know that the big boss gets here at five minutes of 9, sharp. I don't guess he's varied a minute in a year. The rest of the gang gets here before he does. They shave it as close as they can."

A REASON FOR IT

"But you," Agnes reminded him, "are pretty early yourself."

"I got to be," he said mournfully. "I open the windows, and tear off the calendars, and put fresh bottles in the drinking fountains, and do a dozen jobs before the rest of the push gets here. Gee! If I could have slept fifteen minutes longer this mornin' like you could 'a' done, I wouldn't be here now—believe me!"

The girl only smiled in reply and followed him into the office. She had divested herself of her hat and coat, and, after oiling her machine and getting her papers and pencils ready, had returned to the outer office, when Annie Rooney entered.

"For goodness sake, kid!" the new arrival exclaimed after returning Agnes' "good-morning" cordially—"what you doing here so tour ahead of time? Did you stick around here all night?"

Agnes explained again, and Annie listened the while she bestowed sundry pats to her much-dressed hair, as she stood before a tiny mirror near the cloak closet.

"And me thinking I was the regular early bird of the firm," good-natured Irish girl commented. "Say, how do you like my curlers?" she demanded, giving what Agnes had heard termed "a strictly made in the U. S. A. pronunciation" to the final word. "A lady friend of mine who works in a manicuring and hair-dressing emporium showed me how to do it."

It is very elaborate," Agnes answered vaguely, surveying the high-piled mass of glittering hair that crowned Miss Rooney's head.

"I say—don't get so enthusiastic" the other advised with a laugh. "You might hurt yourself. But, let me tell you, if you'd fix your hair this way you'd be some class. For you're mighty good looking, in spite of your plain way of dressing."

Before Agnes could reply the door of the office opened and the other members of the force came hurrying in. Agnes watched them, as, after removing hats and coats, they seated themselves at their various desks and typewriters.

A GAY CO-WORKER

One of the clerks, a slim, light-haired youth, chucked Annie Rooney under her rounded chin as he passed.

"Hello, baby-doll!" he greeted her joyously. "Up early this morning, as usual, eh? Haven't you got a kiss for papa?"

"Oh, you go on, Larry Briggs!" Annie warned, slapping ineffectively at his outstretched hand.

"Ain't he the limit?" she said to Agnes after the lad had gone on. "But I told me that you did not have to be down town until 9 o'clock."

"I know," Agnes admitted, meanwhile beating energetically the eggs for an omelet, "but I am going to try and get down early for the first few weeks at least. I am only a beginner, and I am sure it will make a good impression if I am always on time."

As she joined the throng climbing the subway stairs to the street the girl thrilled a little, thinking for the hundredth time that she was at last self-supporting.

All about her were workers—gray-haired men, slim, hurrying youths, women of almost every type and age—a detachment of the workera of a great city, all a part of the vast army of fighters for a decent living.

"And I am one of the huge hash," Agnes reflected exultantly, as, reaching the street, she turned toward the tall building where Hale and Bainbridge had their offices.

The elevator which bore her aloft also carried the red-haired lad who acted as guardian of the outer gate in the firm's offices. He grinned and nodded as he met her eyes.

"You're kinder early, ain't you?"

"Not so very early," the girl told him. "It is twenty minutes of 9 now."

"Huh!" he snorted. "You'll get over that early habit quick enough. The crew in this place never shows up till just five minutes before 9. We all know that the big boss gets here at five minutes of 9, sharp. I don't guess he's varied a minute in a year. The rest of the gang gets here before he does. They shave it as close as they can."

A REASON FOR IT

"But you," Agnes reminded him, "are pretty early yourself."

"I got to be," he said mournfully. "I open the windows, and tear off the calendars, and put fresh bottles in the drinking fountains, and do a dozen jobs before the rest of the push gets here. Gee! If I could have slept fifteen minutes longer this mornin' like you could 'a' done, I wouldn't be here now—believe me!"

The girl only smiled in reply and followed him into the office. She had divested herself of her hat and coat, and, after oiling her machine and getting her papers and pencils ready, had returned to the outer office, when Annie Rooney entered.

"For goodness sake, kid!" the new arrival exclaimed after returning Agnes' "good-morning" cordially—"what you doing here so tour ahead of time? Did you stick around here all night?"

Agnes explained again, and Annie listened the while she bestowed sundry pats to her much-dressed hair, as she stood before a tiny mirror near the cloak closet.

"And me thinking I was the regular early bird of the firm," good-natured Irish girl commented. "Say, how do you like my curlers?" she demanded, giving what Agnes had heard termed "a strictly made in the U. S. A. pronunciation" to the final word. "A lady friend of mine who works in a manicuring and hair-dressing emporium showed me how to do it."

It is very elaborate," Agnes answered vaguely, surveying the high-piled mass of glittering hair that crowned Miss Rooney's head.

"I say—don't get so enthusiastic" the other advised with a laugh. "You might hurt yourself. But, let me tell you, if you'd fix your hair this way you'd be some class. For you're mighty good looking, in spite of your plain way of dressing."

There's one road that every girl would like to take, and that's the one that leads to Popularity with Men.

Say what you will, it's a long and a hard road to travel, and one on which you will need to start out supplied with every help you can think of, for there will be places where you will need to put on the brakes to avoid skidding, and other places where you'll have to get into high speed and break the traffic laws.

No woman may be the pathfinder for another woman along the whole of the route that leads to a man's fancy, but I'll do the best I can to erect a few signboards along the road for your guidance.

The first signboard reads: "BE BEAUTIFUL, or IF YOU'RE NOT BEAUTIFUL, BE AS GOOD LOOKING AS YOU CAN."

The first question any man ever asks about a girl is: "IS SHE PRETTY?" If she isn't, well! But this isn't as fatal as it sounds, for men praise be to a merciful power that denied them discrimination in feminine pulchritude, can never tell a woman from her clothes. Therefore, provide yourself with becoming raiment, for any girl in a white muslin or a pink chiffon can pass the beauty test with a man.

Also acquire art that is the first aid to good looks, so that your nose be not either shiny after the manner of a peeled onion, nor yet appear as an understudy to a marshmallow. Above all be tidy. Men adore trigness and trimness in a woman, and abhor blowsiness.

THE AFFECTED GIRL.

The second signboard reads: "BE SIMPLE AND NATURAL."

There's no other such bore on earth to man as the girl who is affected, and who is always pretending to be something that she isn't. If you desire masculine society don't pose as high browed and insist on discussing Maeterlinck and Ibsen, and make every man who comes near you feel that he is a poor creature with vulgar musical comedy taste.

Don't be lackadaisical and romantic and discuss about your soul. Don't act as if you were a millionairess who had never fed on anything but truffles and champagne. Just be a simple, wholesome, natural girly girl, who doesn't know a bit more than she is entitled to know at her time of life.

The third signboard reads: "DON'T BE SNIPPY."

When a man shows a girl any attention, the only way she can repay him is by being appreciative, and making him feel that he is giving her the time of her life. Therefore, when a man talks to you, cultivate an expression of absorbed attention. Laugh at his good stories, no matter whether you heard them before or not.

If he takes you on a trolley ride, don't spend the time telling him what a grand time you had in some other man's twelve-cylinder automobile. If he takes you to the theatre, applaud the play to the echo, whether you like it or not. No man ever takes out a joy-killer but once, but a man just naturally yearns for the society of a girl who makes him feel that he's a benevolent philanthropist who is showing her life.

THE FOURTH SIGNBOARD.

The fourth signboard reads: "PLAY THE GAME."

Take the good with the bad. Learn how to play golf, how to play tennis, how to dance, how to play a good game of cards, and be always ready to chip in and do what others are doing. So shall you avoid being a wall flower.

The fifth signboard reads: "BE GOOD-NATURED."

A laugh that is hung on a hair-trigger will carry a girl farther than any other talent. No girl who is cheerful and sweet-tempered and good-natured, and who can make things jolly for a party when it rains at a picnic, or an excursion train is late, or a fire blows out, ever lacks for masculine attention.

The sixth signboard reads: "ALWAYS TALK TO A MAN ABOUT HIMSELF, INSTEAD OF EXPECTING HIM TO TALK TO YOU ABOUT YOURSELF."

The infallible rule for making yourself fascinating to a man is to get him to tell you the story of his life. Ask him about the time when he was a little boy with freckles. Ask him to tell you all about his automobile, his tennis score, his golf record.

Ask him who is going to win the league championship. Inquire concerning his business and listen as one enthralled. But never try to tell a man who you really think, or expect him to listen to your adventures, no matter how thrilling they may have been.

Of course, there are other directions that I might give to guide you along the road to Popularity with Men. But if you follow these signboards that I have erected you cannot fail to reach your destination safely.

Tumblers, fruit dishes, lamp chimneys, globes and other similar articles can be mended when broken with the following preparation: Take five parts of gelatine to one part of a solution of bichromate of potash. Cover the broken edges with this and press together, then place in direct sunlight for a few hours. The mended article will become apart even if washed in boiling water nor will the breaks show.

Water in which fish has been boiled should be poured, when cold, on to the rose-bed, if you are not making it into soup. It will improve your roses wonderfully.

Salt put on an ink-stain freshly made will loosen the mark.

To clean a black straw hat roll a piece of black velvet round your fingers and rub the straw with this, following the curve of the hat. The velvet will thoroughly clean the hat and remove the dust.

To clean brass bedsteads, rub them with a cloth dipped in salad oil, then rub with a soft cloth and with a chamois leather.

The tiny spots sometimes seen on lemon-rind are the eggs of insects, and should be rubbed off before the lemon is used.

Never let milk stand in a tin. Pour it into a well-scoured cold china or earthenware bowl.

To clean wallpaper make a paste with three cupfuls of flour, three tablespoons of ammonia and one and a half cupfuls of water. Roll it into balls and rub over the paper. It makes it as clean as when new.

To whiten handkerchiefs which have become a bad color, soak them for a night in a solution of pipeclay and warm water. Wash and boil them next day in the usual way, and they will be beautifully white.

Salt and vinegar will remove stains from discolored teacups.

The Biography of a Sinner

Len Promises Vera to Say Nothing About Meeting Rex at the Inn

By ANN LISLE

Copyright, 1916, International News Service.

My bit of manneuvring accomplished its purpose. Len swore he would say nothing to father—and that little secret brought us closer. There was one and difference in my attitude toward my confidants. I rather despised Len for the ease with which I had managed him, but I admired Jim Donaldson for the way he had understood my desire for secrecy!

FRIENDSHIP PROGRESSES

The Summer droned through to an accompaniment of little events which went to make a great change in all our lives. I saw more and more of Mildred and less and less of Rex. And I knew he was consoling himself with Clara Stacey and the Milford crowd.

Occasionally I reproached him for it, but I'm afraid I was not very tactful about it all. I was absorbed in pride at my latest conquest. Jim Donaldson had fallen into the habit of coming down to Rockbrooke for at least every week end. Inasmuch as Paul and Eleanor Semple came too, there was very little chance for gossip. Father was very lenient with me, since all of my parties included Len.

"You're getting to be pretty fond of your big brother, eh, Vera? Len's not a bad sort if he is like father, is he?"

In his delight over Len's success with Mildred and my growing intimacy with my older brother, father was tolerantly kind to Rex. He seemed to take a grim delight in the fact that Rex was being pushed into the position of an outsider.

One morning toward the end of July Len ventured a suggestion which made even mother start and gaze at father in amusement.

"Now, dad, Rex has his twenty-first on the second of August and Vee will be nineteen on the twenty-fifth. And, as you may remember, Mr. Leonard Sheldon is going to be a grave and reverend twenty-five around Thanksgiving time. What do you say to combining your birthday presents for your three children and buying an automobile?"

A BRILLIANT SUGGESTION

The splendid audacity of that gave me a feeling of great respect for Leonard. I knew that father could very well afford a car, but I didn't think that meant he would afford it.

Suddenly mother made a suggestion: "Caspar, I'm feeling so much better these days that I really think I could dispense with my carriage. Why don't you sell it and put whatever you get in buying the children a motor? I think I'd rather enjoy a few trips myself. Sylvester and Adam Gregory both have cars and so has Dan Francis. Don't you think we ought to have one too?"

Mother and Len were doing so well that I fairly felt myself spinning over the country in our new car. I thought what fun it would be to impress Mr. Donaldson with the fact that we, too, were citizens of the world and owned a motor.

"Well, I suppose the horses and carriage would fetch six or seven hundred, and I'd be giving each of the children a hundred on their birthdays. That's a thousand. Can you get a car for that?"

"Not the kind of a car you'd want, governor. Just a painted bunch of junk with an engine inside," laughed Len easily. "You want a car that will do you credit. Why don't we go up to New York some day next week and look over the market. I'd like a day's vacation with you."

I felt dizzy with joy at the possibilities I saw looming ahead, but I was not given a vision of all the possibilities. That was merciful.

"Do you think you could take charge of the plant for a day, Rex?" asked father.

A REBUFF FOR REX

"Yes, sir, and run the car, too, later if you need a chauffeur."

"Oh, I think I'll be the chauffeur, Rex," said Len a little patronizingly.

A quick flush swept itself high up on Rex's cheek bones.

"Yes, I think we'll let our steady Len be the driver, Rex," said father. "The rest of us will be passengers."

Later Rex confided in me rather bitterly. "The Governor doesn't trust me Vera. I suppose I think I'd go off joy riding, and fill the car up with the wrong sort of people. Well, maybe I would if I couldn't get the right ones."

"Oh, I don't think it's that, Reggie. But Len is awfully steady. After we've had the car for a month or so and the novelty of driving has worn off I'll wager you can persuade him to share honors with you."

A DREARY PROSPECT

"Yes, but it's Len who'll be sitting up on the front seat with Mildred next to him and driving up the river road these wonderful Summer evenings," said Rex bitterly.

"Why, Rex, I didn't think you were interest in Mildred any more. I thought you liked Clara Stacey and that Marsh girl from Milford."

"A lot you know about a man's feelings, Vera."

"Don't you like Clara and Bessie Marsh?"

Strong Hint

Scribb and his wife were going to the theatre.

"Will you please go upstairs and get my coats off the dressing-table?" said Mrs. Scribb.

"Your coats, dearest?" said the puzzled Scribb. "What new-fangled idea have you women got now?"

"I'll show you," snapped the wife.

Then she sailed away, and soon returned with a pair of boots.

"Are those what you mean? Why, I call those kids."

"I used to," replied Mrs. Scribb, "but they are getting so old I am ashamed to call them by that name any longer."

He took the hint.

If Stomach Hurts Drink Hot Water

A Physician's Advice.

"If dyspepsia, sufferers from gas, wind or pain after eating, acidity or sourness, gastric catarrh, heartburn, etc., would take a teaspoonful of pure bisurated magnesia in a half a glass of hot water immediately after eating, they would soon forget they were ever afflicted with stomach trouble, and doctors would have to look elsewhere for patients." In explanation of these words a well known New York physician stated that most forms of stomach trouble are due to stomach acidity and fermentation of the food contents of the stomach combined with acid, and that bisurated magnesia taken in hot water increases the blood supply of the digestive organs, instantly neutralizes the excessive stomach acid and stops food fermentation, the combination of the two, therefore, being marvelously successful and decidedly preferable to the use of artificial digestants, stimulants or medicines for indigestion.

PLAY 'BEATRICE FAIRFAX' IN MOVIES

The following letter from William Randolph Hearst has been received by the editor of the New York Evening Journal:

My Dear Sir—Would you please consider the following suggestion in connection with making the work of Beatrice Fairfax more useful, and will you discuss the matter with her?

The Beatrice Fairfax articles in the Evening Journal and our other newspapers throughout the country have made for Miss Fairfax many thousands of friends, especially among young girls.

Miss Fairfax's writings are wonderfully vivid, but it occurs to me that their value and power could be greatly increased by adapting Miss Fairfax's work and ideas to the most modern form of presentation, the moving picture.

That which is shown in moving pictures impresses itself upon the mind with a force not equalled in any other way. I am aware that Miss Fairfax personally has avoided publicity and shuns it. But I believe that she will do whatever she can to increase the usefulness of her work. And I should like to have an experiment made, with the best of moving pictures that can be had and with the collaboration of the best dramatic writers, to give this suggestion a complete test.

Yours very truly,
WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST.

The letter was referred to Miss Beatrice Fairfax, who replied as follows:

My Dear Mr. Brisbane—I am delighted with the suggestion you sent me from Mr. Hearst and shall do my very best to make it a success. Every day I receive letters that furnish the most intensely dramatic, interesting and exciting situations in the lives of young girls and all sorts of people.

As it happens, one of my best friends, Grace Darling, who herself is a very good newspaper writer as well as widely known as a moving picture actress, would be exactly the person to represent me on the screen, and to play the part of Beatrice Fairfax. I know you will understand that it is better for me not to try to appear on the screen, but confine my work to devising the pictures and supplying the material.

I assure you that I have never been so much interested in anything in my life. I shall work at the pictures with all possible energy, and I am certain that because of the power that is in moving pictures the value of my work will be multiplied very greatly.

Yours very sincerely,
BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

As a result of this correspondence, a wonderful serial photoplay, throbbing with heart interest in every episode, will shortly be presented by the International Film Service Inc. under the title of "Beatrice Fairfax."

Following the suggestion of Miss Fairfax, Miss Grace Darling will impersonate the celebrated confidante on the screen. Miss Darling is one of the most charming of present day moving pictures actresses and splendidly adapted to the role.

Harry Fox, famous as a light comedian, will share the stellar honors with Miss Darling in the production. Throughout the various episodes, Mr. Fox will impersonate "Jimmy Barton, a reporter of the Evening Journal. Each episode will be a complete story, presenting some thrilling incident suggested by letters that come to Beatrice Fairfax.

SCRATCH ON NOSE BY GIRL KILLED CUNEO

London, July 27.—Blood-poisoning from the scratch of a society girl's finger nail was the cause of the death of Cyrus Cuneo, the American artist, a few days ago. It was a lively affair, and during a general romp one of the girls happened to scratch Cuneo's nose.

ANSWER TO-MORROW

PAINE WARNED HEIRESS OF SCANDAL, HE SAYS ON STAND

Q—Do you know Phinney? A—Yes.

Q—Do you have business dealings with him? A—I have done business for him. I have known him since he was five years old.

Q—Now you received as conservator two checks—these two? (Showing him two checks.) A—Yes.

The checks were put in evidence. One was for $266.35, the other for $394.79.

He told of a conference between Miss McAdam, Miss Smith and himself, said:

"It was understood after our interview by Marion that Phinney ought not to call to see her at the house where she went to live after the left our place.

MEN EXCLUDED.

"She said she could not live alone, and it was agreed Miss McAdam would go and live with her temporarily.

"I told her that because of the scandal connecting her name with theirs, Phinney and Jeff ought not to come and see her; and she agreed that was right.

"She agreed they should be excluded. Mrs. Paine confirmed this over the phone that night and told him to keep away from Marion. Next morning Marion and Miss McAdam came up to the house and talked of the matter of excluding the men again, and agreed to it."

Paine testified his troubles started from the time he slammed the door in Maurice Phinney's face.

Witness asked Attorney Morse for the privilege of telling the story, which was granted. He was being cross-examined.

"I did not want the job as conservator," began Paine.

"There was no money in it for me, but bother and trouble, and I would have liked to get out of it.

PLANNED TO QUIT.

"I had in mind to resign, and I almost wish I had. But after considerable thinking it over, I believed it was my duty to see it through. I don't want to be conservator or have anything to do with it, but I don't want to be removed as incompetent.

"I wanted to get out and I consulted my brother about it, but he told me, 'Don't resign under fire, and let Maurice Phinney and the rest put it all over you.'

"I believed Mr. Morse thought the girl was abused and had had a hard time, and sympathized with her, and did. I think until about April 22d after she had left my house and gone home. Then when I found what she was saying. That a child out of whole cloth, and I learned from Mr. Bodfish of other things she had said, and the letters she had written, I changed my mind.

"Then I decided I should remain as conservator and also that as guardian someone to look after her. She had no mother, no brother or sisters, no close friend of her own sex but one, and that one living somewhere to had influence. I believed that Mr. Morse didn't know as much about her as I did, or he would have understood the case better.

FEARED OTHERS.

"I feared that in Hartford other people would get at her and persuade her to deed away her property or give Maurice Phinney a power of attorney. I believed in suggesting a conservator there I was acting in her best interests, for she was friendless and believed in me.

"Later after her attitude, I changed. I decided [illegible] to have a successful conservator appointed, sending for Attorney Morse to confer here, so I told Judge Bill to press the petition.

"I told him I wouldn't be guardian under any circumstances. As conservator the witness said he had received two checks, one of April 24 for $266.35 and another of May 15 for $394.79. He had not opened a separate set of books for her account, but put the checks to the credit of his own general account in the Hartford Bank. On May 19 he had from Judge Bill a check for $6.89, the result of the $171.24 Hartford Savings Bank balance after $75 had been held and a small bill settled. June 1 he received $12.50 as interest on a mortgage, making a total of approximately $575.

For the sale of the Toledo & Ohio bond he got a net return of $947.65 against which there was a note for $200, leaving a balance of $747. Up to June 6, then, he had received $1,200 in money, and the only money he had given to her directly was $10, April 15.

WOMAN TELLS STORY.

The witness admitted his bill for services totaled $1,000.

Mrs. Jennie Paine, the next witness examined by Attorney Bill, testified:

"While at my home I told her it was not proper for Maurice to be calling on her, but she would not. She said Maurice had deceived her and been only calling on her to get her money."

Here witness described conversation she had with Mr. Phinney over telephone about Maurice. He said he realized that was so, that she, Marion, had bothered him a good deal.

He said, "Yes, yes, yes."

The witness told of conversations she had with Marion, one of which concerned Maurice Phinney at which time Marion said she young men bothered her about Maurice.

Cross-examined by Attorney Morse, the witness admitted she wanted to be Marion's adviser.

Dr. E. E. Hawes of Hyannis testified Marion was capable of attending to her business in every way.

Louis Arnicoki of Hyannis knew Marion. He believed her to be the brightest, smartest girl with best judgment of any girl he knew.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKETS

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor

Stocks were weak at noon in New York after wobbling up and down all the morning. There was first a improvement and a reaction in the second. Changes were up or down were slight. Industrial Alcohol receded more than a point early and later showed a point gain. But trading was dull and lacking in interest. Strike fears affected railroads.

Declines at 12 o'clock included Anaconda ⅛, Inspiration ⅝, Kennecott ⅜, Utah Copper ⅜, Goodrich 2⅛, American Can ⅝, Amalgamated Smelting ⅜, Car and Foundry 1, American Locomotive ¼, Distillers ¼, Mexican Petroleum ⅜, Willys-Overland ⅜, Chicago Pacific 1½, Southern Pacific ⅛, Chesapeake & Ohio 1, Reading ⅛, Lehigh Valley ⅛, New York Central ⅛, New Haven ⅝, Baltimore & Ohio ¼, and Union Pacific ⅜.

Among gains were Crucible ⅛, Industrial Alcohol ⅝, Maxwell ⅛, Studebaker ⅛, and Martine preferred ½. Steel and Baldwin were unchanged.

GULF COMMON THE FEATURE.

Atlantic, Gulf & West Indies common was the feature of the Boston market, which reflected New York. The local list was irregular at the best. Declines at 12 o'clock included Alaska Gold ⅛, New Haven ⅛, American Zinc ⅜, Butte & Superior ¼, Calumet & Arizona ⅝, Calumet & Hecla ⅝, Quincy ¼, Gulf common 1¼, and U. S. Smelting ⅛.

Among gains were Boston Elevated ⅛, Calumet & Arizona ⅛, Copper Range ⅛, Wolverine 1¾ and United Shoe ⅛.

BOSTON CURB QUIET.

Trading on the Boston Curb was quiet. At the end of an hour more declines than gains were recorded. Included Boston & Montana 2 cents, National Zinc 1-16, Porcupine Premier 1 cent and Porcupine Tisdale ½ cent. Among gains were Earl Eagle 1 cent, and Fortuna 2 cents. Boston & Montana and Porcupine were the most active issues.

WEAK AT THE OPENING.

At the opening New York prices were fractionally lower, with Goodrich and Industrial Alcohol off more than a point. Trading was narrow. It was largely confined to a few specialties. All classes began weak. U. S. Steel opened a trifle lower. The failure of the market to respond to the phenomenal earnings of the U. S. Steel Corporation was a shock to bulls. It was depressing in general. But bears were cautious. While demoralized by the slight they are not in plentiful supply. Speculators are waiting. For what no one knows. The absence of definitives known in years, or ever known, have failed to induce the public to enter the market. Many of the public is to say what would cause an upward movement of consequence.

The Boston market began very dull, but it was steady. Most of the little business done was in Gulf common. It opened with a decline. Coppers were quiet. So were specialties.

PRUDENTIAL TRUST GREW FAST.

The Prudential Trust Company of Boston, which has been in existence only, is a lusty institution. Opening its doors on June 1, 1915, it had on June 1, 1916, investments and deposits totalling $662,685.09, and undivided profits of $21,361. In its savings departments are 1,400 accounts on which interest monthly instead of quarterly. It had $26,253.80 in cash and deposits in banks. Its life insurance with it amounted to $184,127.57. Its loans totalled $177,678.

Among the officers of the Mc-Namee is president, while J. Edwin Bradshaw is vice-president, and Louis Arnicoki is Hyannis owner Marion. He believed her to be the brightest, smartest girl with best judgment of any girl he knew.

MOSQUITOES BLAMED FOR BABY PLAGUE

By International News Service.

New York, July 27.—Health experts now see some connection between the plague of infantile paralysis and the plague of mosquitoes. Never since the modern methods of sanitation were adopted have there been so many mosquitoes noticed in and around New York City.

It has been the contention of the leading specialists that infantile paralysis is not spread through the blood, but the fact that the plague has not diminished, despite the efforts being made in all quarters, is attributed by a large part of the public to the poisonous bites of the mosquitoes.

The death of a policeman from infantile paralysis may result in a change in all the preconceived notions as to the disease. It has been the contention of the health officials that infantile paralysis is infectious. The policeman who died of the disease, however, was not a victim of the epidemic.

Thirty-one deaths occurred from infantile paralysis in 191 new cases developed during the twenty-four hours that ended at 10 a. m. today. Yesterday's figures showed thirty-five deaths and 162 cases.

As a result of the steady strides of the disease, health officials are seriously considering the question of not opening the schools in September. Dr. Billings, in charge of the paralysis campaign in Brooklyn, said today that if the epidemic was not under control by that time the schools would be closed, unless the board of education satisfies from homes known to be infected.

Peabody Has First Baby Plague Case

A case of infantile paralysis was reported to the State Board of Health today from Peabody.

The child ill is the three-year-old daughter Mr. and Mrs. Kalli Lundgren of No. 20 Mt. Vernon street.

Peabody physicians who examined her said there was no doubt the case was one of infantile paralysis, and reported the matter to the State health inspectors.

FINDS NO TRACE OF MISSING TEACHER

Dr. John Duff of Charlestown, whose brother-in-law, Walter E. Harington, commercial teacher in the Rochester, N. H. high school, disappeared from sight a week ago from Rochester, said today he had been able to get no trace of Harrington. Dr. Duffy calls Mrs. Ella Duffy, formerly a member of the Boston School Committee, a Harrington sister.

Harrington, when he left Rochester, said he was coming to Charlestown to see his father, who, he said, was critically ill. Dr. Duffy said today he knew of no illness of the elder Mr. Harrington.

MRS. TALBOT FACES KIDNAPING CHARGE

A charge of being a fugitive from justice against Mrs. Josephine Fourcher Talbot was maintained by the Salem court today. The woman has been extradited to Manchester, N. H., where she will answer a charge of kidnaping their son, brought by her former husband, Donat Talbot of Manchester.

OVERDUE YACHT IS SAFE IN BAR HARBOR

Bar Harbor, July 27.—The Canadian yacht Wild Rose, which left Portland last Saturday, and about which fears had been expressed, arrived safely in port here. Its skipper reported merely that the yacht had been delayed by fog.

BIRTH CONTROL AND PLAY DISTINCT

Dr. E. A. Golden, manager of the photo-play in Where's My Wife? now being shown at the Majestic Theatre, said today that the management of the picture had no interest, and was in no way connected with the birth control mass meeting to be held at the theatre Sunday night. He says he neither favors nor opposes birth control, and that while recognizing that the management of the theatre has a right to lease it for Sunday night, he would have wished that some other day had been chosen for the mass meeting.

Things in General

Sharks, Submarine, Bathers, Etc.

Copyright, 1916, Star Company

WHY HAVE SHARKS SUDDENLY TAKEN TO EATING HUMAN BEINGS?

Sharks have always been in American waters, and human beings have been there to eat.

Is this perhaps an explanation of the man-eating?

Before the war, great ocean liners were crossing constantly, throwing overboard food for the sharks.

Passenger ships threw away enough food to keep many huge sharks fat and contented.

Recently, because of war, this supply of food has been cut off. Some of the very big and heavy sharks had grown plutocratic and lazy following the ocean steamers, relying on that absolutely regular and certain supply of food, easily obtained.

Now they are hungry and desperate, like the Russian wolves that come into the villages and seize children in severe Winters.

Having forgotten how to catch their natural prey, the sharks may continue their man-eating expeditions until the war ends.

Would it be worth while to take a few dead horses and cows, well charged with poison, a certain distance out from the shore, far enough out to be inoffensive—anchor them, and allow the sharks to eat their fill and die? This is our humble contribution to the man-eating shark literature.

A RED-HEADED BRIGADE OF FIGHTERS IS TO BE ORGANIZED BY MR. H. H. BAER OF BROWNSVILLE, PENNSYLVANIA.

Red-headed men are supposed to be hot-tempered, fierce fighters, and there is a basis for the supposition. Red hair is a survival of ancient days, when prehistoric man lived on mammoth meat, and raised his boy to be a cannibal, in any convenient cave.

Observe how humanity changes. Today it will be difficult for Mr. Baer to find enough red-headed men to form his regiment. One hundred thousand years ago it would have been extremely difficult to find half a dozen men that were NOT red-haired.

Not only were they red-haired, but they and their wives had red hair on arms, back, shoulders and chest. And the man who did not marry a red-headed girl remained single.

The gigantic gorilla, eight feet tall, found in the hottest part of Africa, also had red hair—he belonged to that ancient red-headed day. And, by the way, that red-haired gorilla could walk through Mr. Baer's regiment of red-headed men, five hundred of them, with the greatest of ease—if the red-headed men used only the gorilla's weapon.

THE TRANSATLANTIC SUBMARINE IS HERE—THE TRANSATLANTIC ZEPPELIN, LIGHTER THAN AIR, IS PLANNED. AND AS THE GERMANS SAY THEY WILL GET IT HERE, THEY WILL.

We look at the coming of the submarine and the proposed trip of the Zeppelin flying across the ocean as incidents of the war.

Ages to come will look upon the war as an incident, and the transatlantic flying machine as THE BIG THING.

Any little boy can tell you that the ancient scientist is alleged to have destroyed the fleet of the enemy blockading the city by the use of a burning glass. Everybody remembers the burning glass, and how it concentrated the sun's heat on the fleet and destroyed it. But who remembers the war, or cares anything about it?

This is a big war, it has done a great deal of harm, killed a great many people. But the harm will be undone and the people will be replaced. The incidents of the war best remembered will have nothing to do with the war.

"In 1916 the submarine first crossed the Atlantic," they will say.

And "in 1917 a flying machine first crosed the Atlantic."

They will say, "In 1916 the United States took the lead in exports of manufactured articles—and took and kept the first place in the world's industrial and agricultural history."

They will say perhaps that the war of 1916 awakened the intellect and conscience of Russia—drove Turkey into Asia, and put an end to the rule of autocracy in Europe.

They will say many things about what happened in our day one thousand years from now—and the least important of them all will be THE WAR.

NOTED SCIENTISTS ARE GATHERED TOGETHER TO FIGHT INFANTILE PARALYSIS.

That's an encouraging line, it shows that the world progresses.

There was a time when men used to ring church bells to drive away the devils responsible for disease. Now they clean the gutters of the streets and take baths. We learn, even from disease.

Apparently only plagues are strong enough to reach the imagination and make the people think as a whole.

When the prosperous individual finds that thinking about HIMSELF is not enough to make himself and his family secure, he begins to think more widely.

ONLY OLD MEN SHOULD HAVE CHILDREN—PLATO SAYS.

This European war will test Plato's idea, as other wars have tested it.

In his "Republic" Plato says that the mothers of children should be young, and fathers of children should be old.

The idea is that the child inherits its brain from the father, therefore the father should not have children until he has had time to develop a good brain by working it.

The child inherits its health, its blood, its moral character from its mother. Therefore, the mother should have her children while she is young, between twenty and thirty, when her physical health is at its very best, and her moral health perfect.

When the earth is fully populated, and death in childhood unknown, the family will be limited to two children. The father and the mother will replace themselves with a boy and a girl and they will not be allowed to have any more—unless somebody says, "You are very great, the world needs your children, so you can have my two."

In that future day the best age for fatherhood will be between fifty-five and seventy-five, and the best age for motherhood will be between thirty-five and fifty.

Meanwhile, the world needs, after the war's Eutchery, as many children as it can get and the best children that it can get.

Assuming that deaths caused by the war will number four millions of young men, there will be four millions of young spinsters or young widows compelled to marry old men, or remain single.

Many children of the next generation will be the children of men past fifty. This has happened in other wars—perhaps that accounts for the gradual improvement of the human race.

By the way, we have taken the trouble to publish the very best edition of Plato's "Republic," for the benefit of our readers:

[Hearst's International Library, No. 119 West Fortieth street, New York City, has published complete Professor Jowett's translation of "The Republic," with Jowett's analysis of the work. This work has been sold hitherto at $3.25. It may be purchased now for 50 cents, at book stores, or it can be ordered by sending 50 cents to Hearst's International Library, No. 119 West Fortieth street, New York City. Needless to say, this work is not produced for profit, for there is no profit in its publication. We are glad to give to earnest men and women an opportunity to possess some of the really great books of the world. Hearst's International Library has already published Buckle's "History of Civilization in England," four volumes, for $1. It publishes an absolutely complete edition of Shakespeare's works and one of the best editions in existence for $1, and we offer you the best existing translation of "The Republic of Plato" for 50 cents, less than one-sixth of the price at which it has been sold hitherto. We shall be interested to see how many readers will avail themselves of this opportunity.]

Charles E. Burbank Is a Good Man

GOVERNOR McCALL has made a very excellent appointment in Mr. Charles E. Burbank to the Board of Economy and Efficiency.

Mr. Burbank is an able and a conscientious man. He has rendered the State great service as a Progressive in forwarding a number of progressive policies. He is a lawyer who will know how to exact the truth from any public department which he may have cause to examine.

The appointment is twice creditable. It is creditable to him who made it and to him who received it.

Shoes and Summer Comfort

By Woods Hutchinson, M. D.

The World's Best Known Writer on Medical Subjects.

PART TWO

WE are everlasting complaining really our vanity—and our of our shoes, when it is feet—that are to blame.

If you know the feet and the work they have to do the shoes follow of their own accord, and questions of their shape and size settle themselves automatically. Shoes should be foot-shaped—but prettier. Nature meant well when she made our feet, but that was when we were living in trees, and times have changed since then, so we must be forgiving and try to help her out.

There is absolutely no need of wasting time or sentiment lamenting any imaginary lost condition of freedom and perfection of the human foot, in barefoot days, whether individual or racial. A foot without a shoe is like a clam without a shell, and barefoot savages have among the worst feet in the world instead of the best, as we fondly imagine. As a second pair of hands for swinging through the branches our feet were admirable, but ever since we began to clump them on solid ground they have needed shoes and needed them badly.

Shoes are a great nuisance, but you can't get anywhere or do anything worth while without them, and on the whole they do our feet far more good than harm and protect them from at least five times as much damage as they inflict. The good effects of shoes are to their bad ones as corns and bunions and ingrowing toenails are to hookworm and bubonic plague and boils and ulcers and blood poisonings of all sorts. We must dismiss any hope of solving the shoe problem and relieving our poor, aching feet by any sort of return to a Garden of Eden barefoot freedom.

Even young children run more danger of cuts and scratches and ulcers and soil infections, to say nothing of stone-bruises and heatings and thistles, from going barefoot in the Summertime than is compensated by any imagined improvement in the strength and shapeliness of their feet. Sandals mean the working in of a great deal of infectious dirt and grit between and under the toes, and except for limited periods indoors children's feet are healthier and more comfortable in soft, well-fitting shoes than they are bare.

The Dancing Floor of the Stars Is Full of Dizzily Whirling Orbs

By Garrett P. Serviss

"I have been reading an item which states that Camille Flammarion asserts that the sidereal universe (or, as uni-verse seems wrong, we will call it our sun and all its attendant bodies), is moving through space at the rate of 22,250,000 miles per minute! Whew! Is that the steady headway, or only a spurt for the movies? And what would old Copernicus who has been drifting here and there amid the shining spheres something like 400 years now, be likely to tell us, after all his experience in the infinite until now, about such a marvellous story? When Camille enters the pearly gates will his senior Copernicus stand ready to greet him with a swift one on the jaw, as a whopper-teller, or will he embrace the newcomer as a discoverer of marvellous truth?—E. A. P."

I DO not know on what Flammarion based the statement attributed to him, and probably his meaning has been misinterpreted. The sidereal universe means the entire visible system of stars, and not merely the sun and its attendants. The velocity named is twice the velocity of light, which there is reason to regard as the limit of possible velocity for any substance.

This, according to Newcomb and Michelson, amounts to 11,179,440 miles per minute. But the motion of light is a wave motion in the ether. The highest mass velocity that we know is that of the Beta particles shot out from radium, which, in some cases, may be nine-tenths of the velocity of light. Ordinarily it varies from 600,000 to 5,400,000 miles per minute.

But this swiftness of motion belongs only to electrons, which are almost infinitesimal particles. When we come to deal with the motions of translation which carry the planets and the stars in their orbits, we have comparatively slight velocities.

Planet Mercury Moves 1,000 Miles Per Minute Faster Than the Earth

The swiftest orbital motion of the planet Mercury amounts to only 2,100 miles per minute. That of the earth is 1,100 miles per minute. The motion of the solar system (the sun and its planets), the centre of which motion is unknown, amounts to about 720 miles per minute, and that of the swiftest star yet discovered to about 10,000 miles per minute. According to W. W. Campbell, the average velocity of the stars in space is 1,260 miles per minute.

If the "sidereal universe" has a motion of translation, as a whole, in any direction we know nothing about it, and although we do know that all of its component stars (or suns) have their own motions in various velocities, no common governing centre of these motions has been detected. As far as we can see, they appear to be conducted in straight lines, although the chances are infinitely great that the paths, or orbits, are in reality curved.

In many cases a considerable number of stars seem to be moving under a common impulse, all going one way, although separated from one another by immense spaces, like a broadly scattered flight of migrating birds. Five of the seven bright stars in the "Great Dipper" belong to such a flock. The brilliant Sirius is a member of this group, although from our viewpoint on the earth he appears in a distant part of the sky—a captain marching parallel with his company. The Pleiades form another flock, remarkably compact, like a hen with her chickens.

In addition to these group or flock movements the stars, in general, fall into a grand double procession, columning majestically along through space, about half going one way and the other half the opposite way.

Recently I wrote of the effect that the discovery of the free movements of comets had in demolishing the ancient conception of crystalline spheres, supposed to fill the heavens with transparent layers, one within another, like the coats of an onion; but this double and contrary motion of the stars would be still more effective in grinding such spheres to powder, since the members of the two opposing sets actually move through and among one another, as dancers move upon a ship's deck on the night of the "captain's ball," some couples pirouetting toward the bow and others toward the stern—although the stars are infinitely less liable than the dancers to get into collision.

Leaders of Science Bound to Make Errors While Instructing Fellow-Mortals

In view of all these wonderful facts, discovered long after his day on the earth, Copernicus among the spheres must have had many erroneous notions knocked out of his head, as we shall have many others knocked out of ours if we ever arrive where he is (or where we hope he is).

Instead of greeting Flammarion with a "swift one on the jaw," he may be busy salving his own bumps, for Copernicus, notwithstanding the immense reputation that he left on this little planet, made many a gigantic blunder while instructing his more ignorant fellow mortals—just as the leaders of science do today.

When we are able to say that science is complete and infallible we shall no longer be "mere men." For instance, Copernicus thought that the planets all moved in circles, and that the stars, instead of being scattered at vastly varying distances, and spinning hither and thither through space, were set fast in a kind of enveloping sphere.

No doubt he knows the facts now far better than we do, for "heaven" is the greatest of schools, which, for some persons, constitutes the chief motive for wishing to enter it.

Thoughts by the Way

Don't laugh at that green, ungainly looking fellow who has joined your force. In a few years you may be asking him for a job.

No, it is not at all impossible. There are thousands of such instances. You can think of some yourself.

That new boy may not be as natitly dressed as you are; he may not be as keen at repartee; he may not be a "fast-stepper," but he may possess the characteristics by which he may climb fast while you slip back.

One of these days there may be a change in the business and the young man of whom you are making sport may step into the high place.

Should that time come do not be so small that you say that he must have had some kind of a "pull" or "that he was a fool and worked overtime and did everything he could to get a stand in." Maybe he did. You might have done the same. So shut up and take your medicine.

But do not let the next one get ahead of you.
